

RALPH Mc GILL

To a High Plane Of Regard

Notes from a Washington Notebook: It was bright and clear along Pennsylvania Avenue, and even though he was a good 50 yards away, the processes of recognition started the mind and the face to smiling by saying, "Why, that's Robert Frost."

And so it was. He was spending a week in the nation's capital, and on a good sunny afternoon in the spring there is no prettier place to walk. He spoke of the beauty of the day and the flowers in the park.

The Library of Congress had friends in for a couple of morning coffees to meet the poet who had been its consultant in poetry and English and honorary consultant in the humanities.

The questions reportedly were somewhat groping. But the poet's replies were, as always, in the most powerful use of plain language, undecorated with any rhetoric. Because Mr. Frost read a poem at Mr. Kennedy's Inaugural, and a number of writers and artists were present, a questioner wanted to know if he, Frost, had noted any change in the mood of artists since January 20.

No Change

The poet put his mind to this and said no. Jealousy, he said, remains the same old jealousy, love the same old love, hate the same old hate. People, including artists, don't change much, he said. So since January 20, there hasn't been much change. Not even science changes them.

No one asked the question about the interest in the products of artists, poets, painters, sculptors, playwrights and the like. There has been an increase in the reading of poetry, and the charming Mrs. Kennedy has stimulated more persons to buy pictures and hang them. As anyone can tell who does any walking on the streets of our cities, or attends gatherings of various kinds, a disarming number of ladies are trying to look like Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy. It is the more encouraging, therefore, to learn that she and Mr. Frost had stimulated the reading of poems and purchasing of paintings.

A Frost quote about education was recalled. It had, perhaps, special relevance for the harassed young man in the White House there on Pennsylvania Avenue. Someone, somewhere, had asked Mr. Frost that familiar old cliché of a question—didn't he think education was the answer.

The poet thought this over hurriedly and revealed a doubt.

Education, he said, can lift trouble to a higher plane of regard, but it doesn't get rid of the trouble.

Famous Remarks

No one ever before said that about education and since it is so incisively true, one wonders why it is not in the collections of the most famous remarks by the world's sages. This is precisely what education does do for trouble—lift it to a higher plane of regard. Being so lifted it may be the more clearly seen and one may more easily run from it, or go forward to regard it more closely.

At the very moment of Mr. Frost's walk along Pennsylvania Avenue, an excellent education had lifted the Cuban trouble to a higher level of regard for the President. He and the Security Council were even then regarding it.

It was comforting, somehow, to know that the young President turns to Frost's poems for inspiration and strength. There is pity, love and compassion in them. They see and accept the world's contradictions without being frustrated.

There is in the Inaugural poem, "The Gift Outright," lines which are the essence of the meaning of sacrifice for one's country. It isn't giving up butter, or having meat less often than usual. It is more than that:

"Something we were withholding made us weak
Until we found out that it was ourselves
We were withholding from our land of living,
And forthwith found salvation in surrender."

At a time when trouble has been lifted to a new high plane of regard, we cannot withhold ourselves.

Bus Burned, 10 Injured As Race Fights Flare

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—Violence trailed a mixed group of persons testing desegregation at interstate bus stations in the Deep South Sunday.

A Greyhound bus carrying 14 persons, nine of them members of the "Freedom Riders," was stoned and burned outside of Anniston in north Alabama. Ten persons were taken to a hospital where they were treated, mostly for smoke inhalation.

At the Trailways station in Birmingham, violence erupted after a group of "Freedom Riders" arrived from Atlanta.

Several white men attacked the group inside the Birmingham station, beating a Negro youth and a white man apparently accompanying them.

The white men, obviously waiting for the arrival of the bus, covered telephone booths and exits. They refused to permit a Negro man to use a telephone.

"Freedom Riders" spent Saturday night in Atlanta, had no trouble in Georgia, Page 8.

The fighting broke out in several areas around the station in downtown Birmingham.

No police were in evidence until several minutes after the outbreak.

Two newsmen were attacked by the milling crowd outside the bus station. One, Tom Langston of the Birmingham Post-Herald, was hurt painfully, but not hospitalized.

Laos Delegate Split Stalls Geneva Talk

By DREW MIDDLETON
(Copyright 1961 by the New York Times Co.)
GENEVA — Two formulas for the inclusion of three Laotian political groups in the conference here on the future of Laos fell apart Sunday.

The convening powers, great and small, remain deadlocked on the issue of Laotian representation. There is only the remotest chance that the conference can meet Monday.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk and a number of other heads of delegations are consulting their governments on three other formulas evolved by the Earl of Home, Britain's foreign secretary, and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, who are co-chairmen of the conference.

This consultation may produce progress Monday. But a postponement of the opening of the conference for two weeks, while the Laotian representation is settled, has already been discussed by British and other Western delegations.

Qualified sources said that until late Sunday afternoon when Secretary Rusk, Lord Home and French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville conferred, it had appeared that a solution had been found.

This was based on an idea of British origin. Under it, each of

Baby Girl 2 Days Old Abandoned in Box Here

A baby girl, estimated to be about two days old, was found sleeping in a cardboard box early Sunday in the hallway of a southeast Atlanta apartment house.

Doctors at Grady Hospital examined the child and found her to be in good condition.

Police officers found the infant after an unidentified woman called police headquarters and told them the baby had been abandoned at 1570 Memorial Dr., Southeast.

PROBABLY THE MOTHER

She will be kept at Grady until she can be transferred to a state institution, officials said. The child will be a ward of the Fulton County Juvenile Court.

The woman who telephoned the police was probably the baby's mother, officers said.

She did not tell the radio operator why she abandoned the child.

Kennedy Considering June Meeting With Khrushchev in Europe

President Vows Ties To Cubans

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—President John F. Kennedy heard a special glowing tribute to his own mother at mass Sunday—and sent to anti-Castro Cuban mothers "a message of hope" that freedom will come.

"The American people," Kennedy said, "will never forget the people of Cuba—the American people will always associate themselves with your fight for freedom. And freedom will come—for tyranny can never in the long run overcome the legitimate ambitions of people to be free."

The message was sent to refugee Cuban mothers in Miami and was read at an outdoor rally by Dr. Luis Conte Aguero, one of the anti-Castro leaders there. The Cuban mothers had planned a motorcade to Palm Beach in an attempt to see the President, but the temporary White House frowned on that. The message was substituted, plus a meeting here Sunday afternoon between a delegation of the mothers and three presidential aides.

HAVE UNDERSTOOD

Kennedy's three-paragraph greeting to the Cuban mothers said they personally had "encountered the sorrow and pain which accompany the fight for freedom."

"The mothers and fathers who in every generation have been their sons fight for freedom have understood and lived through this grief," the President said.

The President and Mrs. Kennedy attended a 10 a.m. mother's day mass at St. Edward Roman Catholic Church. The pastor, the Rev. Jeremiah P. O'Mahoney, S. J., said he had known Mrs. Joseph P. Kennedy since 1939 and "the mother of the chief executive in Washington, the President of the United States, has never missed a devotion" when she has been in Palm Beach.

FLIES HOME TODAY

The President's mother wasn't present—she left for France a day or two ago. But her son smiled at the warm reference to her.

Monday the holiday ends and Kennedy flies back to Washington for a one-day stop. He departs Tuesday for Ottawa and a three-day official visit to Canada.

Warm Today; Rain on Way

Atlanta and vicinity will be warm Monday with a slight spell of rain moving in Tuesday.

High temperatures for Monday will be about 84, says the Atlanta weatherman, and Tuesday will be partly cloudy with widely scattered showers and thunder showers with a high of 80. Tuesday's low will be 62.

Atlanta had a 60 low and an 82 high Sunday.

First Conference Hangs On Laos, Test Ban Talks

By W. H. LAWRENCE

(Copyright 1961 by the New York Times Co.)

PALM BEACH, Fla. — President John F. Kennedy is considering a conference with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev in early June in a mid-European city.

There are, as yet, no hard and fast plans for such a conference. But a highly placed and informed source said the first Kennedy-Khrushchev face-to-face confrontation may materialize if current talks in Geneva over an effective nuclear test ban agreement and for a neutral and independent Laos "suddenly take a turn for the better."

AFTER DE GAULLE TALKS

If the talks are arranged, they would take place immediately after Kennedy concludes his conference with President De Gaulle in Paris now scheduled for May 31 to June 2.

The President's consideration of a meeting with Khrushchev has reached that stage where it has been talked out with the highest administration officials and confided to a few allied diplomats.

But administration sources emphasized Sunday night that the conditions for such a session, in Kennedy's view, had not been reached.

DECISION NEAR

Highly placed administration sources have hinted for a few days that an extension of the President's trip beyond Paris was under active consideration with a final decision likely in the next few days.

There have been specific flat denials to queries that the extended tour would take him to Moscow, to Bonn, to Rome or to London.

But there was no such categorical denial Sunday to inquiries about a possible meeting in mid-Europe with Khrushchev.

"There are no plans for any such meeting at present," said Pierre Salinger, White House press secretary.

Salinger was asked by reporters whether they should read anything into the qualifying words, "at present."

PUT OUT FEELERS

"I'm not going to say another word about it," Salinger responded.

Nor would Salinger offer any guidance over suggestions that the proposed conference might take place in Vienna.

But there was no doubt here that Kennedy had taken the initiative in putting out at least "diplomatic feelers" to Khrushchev about the possibility of a

Pastor Quits Here Under Pressure

By LAURA LINK

Constitution Religion Editor

The pastor of Atlanta's North Atlanta Baptist Church resigned from his pulpit Sunday under pressure from his congregation.

The Rev. James L. Adkins, who has served the 1,600-member church on Tenth Street for four years, said his resignation is effective 90 days from Sunday.

3 SUPPORTERS

A special meeting of the church session was held following the morning worship service. The meeting was called to act on two resolutions proposed by the board of deacons—one to dismiss the pastor and the other to sustain his services. Of the 10-member board of deacons, only three stood behind the pastor.

The Rev. O. M. Seigler, an interim pastor, was appointed by the Atlanta Baptist Association to serve as moderator of the special meeting.

Before the resolutions could be voted on, the Rev. Mr. Adkins offered his resignation. He said he would make no statement to the press as to the reasons behind his resignation or attempted dismissal—"not even the Baptist press," he added.

REJECT OPEN VOTE

The members voted down a proposal to take a standing vote on their minister. They filed down to the ballot box at the front of the church and dropped in green pieces of paper on which they had written either "go" or "stay."

The Rev. Mr. Adkins was one of the first to cast a vote.

The vote was 214 to 192 in favor of the minister leaving the church. Prayer preceded the voting.

The Rev. Mr. Adkins said the fact that the John Birch Society met at the church recently and had nothing to do with his proposed dismissal.

But a deacon of the church said

Snake Expert, 17, Bitten By Huge Rattler Here

By JIM BENTLEY

Seventeen-year-old Brian Lawrence Bristow of Decatur wants to be a herpetologist. But Sunday afternoon his hobby landed him in Grady Hospital.

Lawrence was bitten on the hand by a diamondback rattlesnake.

That's one of the occupational hazards of herpetology (A branch of zoology concerned with the study of reptiles).

This particular snake didn't want to be collected.

Lawrence, of 2088 Brandon Rd., told Grady officials that he sucked most of the venom from the small nick the rattler inflicted in his hand.

There was no way to tell, however, how much of the venom remained in the boy's system, so he was admitted Sunday night for observation, officials said.

Lawrence's hand was swollen and blue when he was brought to Grady by DeKalb County police, but a Grady physician said the swelling and color was caused by two tourniquets which had been applied to his arm as a first aid move.

The swelling and color went away after the tourniquets were removed, he said.

Lawrence was at first reluctant to tell police and hospital officials his correct name and address because

U.S. Support Still Strong, Johnson Assures Formosa

TAIPEI—Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson has given President Chiang Kai-shek a pledge of continued unqualified U.S. support to the republic of China, President Chiang said Monday.

The 74-year-old Chinese leader told a press conference that Johnson had assured him the United States would continue to support Free China's position in the United Nations and had "no intention" to extend diplomatic recognition to the Communist Chinese regime in Peking.

Johnson also promised the United States would press its opposition to seating Communist China in the United Nations, to the Formosa government, Chiang said.

Chiang declared that Kennedy's decision to send Johnson to Southeast Asia at this delicate juncture in Asian affairs was "the most important and timely decision since the beginning of the new administration."

The Chinese leader said that he was "certain" that Johnson's reaffirmation of U.S. support "would have a great effect in bolstering the morale, hopes and confidence of people who face aggression by the Chinese Communists."

Senate Battle Nears On Aid to Schools Bill

By TOM WICKER

WASHINGTON—A bill to provide $2,550,000,000 for federal aid to education goes to the Senate floor Tuesday. The ensuing battle is expected to spill over into next week.

The measure is generally in line with proposals of the Kennedy administration. It provides, however, $252 million more than the President requested, and its distribution formula will send a large proportion of the money into the poorer states, many of which are in the South.

The prospect is for passage in some form, but the situation is so fluid that the Democratic leaders of the Senate have not yet decided whether to link the bill to the controversial question of aid to private and parochial schools.

ESTABLISHES FUND

Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana, the majority leader, said this would be decided later in the week as a matter of legislative strategy. The decision is "our responsibility," he said, referring to the Senate leadership.

The White House, Mansfield said, has taken no position on the question of adding to the school bill provisions that would expand the separate National Defense Education Act.

The expansion would establish a $75 million fund for long term loans to private and parochial schools, to help them build facilities for the teaching of science, mathematics and foreign language.

If this plan is not tacked to the main school bill this week, it will be offered later in a separate package.

HOUSE RELATIVELY QUIET

In the House, where a greater resistance to the school aid proposal is expected later this session, a relatively quiet week is in prospect. Debate on the appropriations for the Labor and Health, Education and Welfare departments, scheduled Wednesday, is the biggest item of business.

On Monday, a move may be made by Rep. Francis E. Walter of Pennsylvania, to get quick action on a bill to limit published matter entering the United States from foreign countries. The Kennedy administration is opposed to the measure.

A bill to reduce from $500 to $100 the amount of duty-free goods a tourist may bring into the United States will be called up Monday under "suspension of the rules"—a procedure requiring a two-thirds vote.

MEETING SCHEDULED

Some important committee meetings are scheduled in both houses.

The House Education and Labor Committee continues its deliberations on aid to education. The Ways and Means Committee will have further hearings on the President's proposed tax reforms.

In the Senate, the Banking and Currency Committee is expected to approve major portions of the administration's housing requests, including a new program of forty-year mortgage loans requiring no down payments.

One Kennedy program already passed by Congress will get some elucidation from administration officials. At a meeting of the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association here Monday, both Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman and William L. Batt, the Commerce department's ad-

Paris Bomb Hits Home Of Official

Copyright 1961 by the New York Times Co.

PARIS—A plastic bomb went off early Monday in an apartment building in a fashionable section of Paris near the Bois de Boulogne where Jean Charles Lepidi, a Gaullist deputy in the National Assembly, lived.

The concierge of the building was slightly injured by the explosion. Damage to the ground floor of the building was extensive.

It was believed the bomb attack was directed against Lepidi, who resided on the ground floor. He told police he had received several threatening letters recently.

FIFTH IN TWO DAYS

The explosion was the fifth to occur in Paris in the last two days. Other explosions, in continental France and Algeria, injured at least 10 persons over the weekend.

Bombs made of plastic putty are considered a trademark of right-wing advocates of keeping Algeria French. Such activists are believed to have set off the bomb which injured four persons in Nice, on the French Riviera, early Sunday.

Although tension was reported high in Algeria, particularly in Algiers, most reports from the strife-ridden territory indicated that the Europeans there were mainly going about their business.

VICTORY CELEBRATED

Extremely hot weather Sunday on the other side of the Mediterranean sent thousands of Europeans to the beaches outside of Algiers. In the city itself, troops and security forces remained in a state of alert around key government and military edifices.

Continental France also enjoyed balmy weather. Parisians who did not motor into the country for the day had the chance to watch President De Gaulle and other high officials mark the 16th anniversary of the Allied victory in Europe in World War II.

Sizeable crowds, many of them tourists, saw the ceremony unfold along the Avenue des Champs-Elysees and around the Arc de Triomphe. Security dispositions were extensive.

President Charles de Gaulle, wearing his brigadier general's uniform, rode up the avenue in an open car and saluted the cheering onlookers. A few shouts hostile to the President were heard for which five persons were reported to have been taken into custody for questioning.

Lady Bird, Kennedy's Sister Sew for Chinese

By REITA PAYNE

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—With a few stitches on a treadle machine, Lady Bird Johnson symbolically sewed uniforms Sunday for Chiang Kai-shek's Chinese Nationalist armed forces.

So did Mrs. Stephen Smith, President John F. Kennedy's sister.

This scene, typifying the spirit of Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson's visit to Formosa, was enacted at headquarters of the Chinese Women's Antiaggression League, headed by Madame Chiang Kai-shek. Madame Chiang was there to give a warm welcome to the two American wives.

"You look just like your brother," she remarked to Mrs. Smith.

Members of the league presented Mrs. Johnson a white stole embroidered with a multicolored phoenix. Mrs. Smith received a black stole embroidered with many-hued butterflies. Both also received hats. Mrs. Johnson got a cone shaped one of the type worn by Formosan workers.

"I think it's just beautiful, but I don't think it will be very becoming on me," she said.

Kindergarten children of a nursery for military dependents sponsored by the league performed a classical style, Peking opera dance for the visitors. Later the ladies visited a suburban housing development and a home for war orphans.

Mrs. Johnson brought with her from Manila a silver vase given her by the wife of President Carlos P. Garcia and a creamy white terno—native women's formal dress—with sequins.

"I can't wait to wear it at the White House at the first possible occasion," she said.

Mrs. Smith got a similar terno, in blue, and said she would show it off to her sister-in-law, Jacqueline Kennedy.

Germany to Hear 4 in Eichmann Trial

(Copyright 1961 by the New York Times Co.)

JERUSALEM — West Germany has informed Israel she will help in the trial of Adolf Eichmann.

Prosecution sources revealed Sunday that West German courts had agreed to hear four former elite guard officers and civilian administrators of the Nazi regime later this week. The four have been barred from coming to the Eichmann trial by the threat of arrest in Israel as war criminals.

JEWISH AFFAIRS EXPERT

The hearings will start Thursday when Eberhard von Thadden, former Jewish affairs expert in the German Foreign Office, will appear in the local court at Neuss, near Duesseldorf.

On the following day in Frankfurt, Hermann Krume, a former elite guard subordinate of Eichmann in Hungary; Dr. Max Merz, former military administrator of Salonika, and Professor Alfred Six, a former Elite Guard superior of Eichmann in the mid-30s, will be examined in the Amtsgericht (local court).

Erwin Saul Shimon, a Jerusalem lawyer, will attend the hearings for the prosecution and Dieter Wechtenbruch, assistant defense counsel, will leave the Eichmann trial to observe for the defense.

QUESTIONS LISTED

Last week an Israeli diplomatic courier took to West Germany lists of questions by the defense and prosecution. Under German court procedure these questions generally must be put by the judge, but Israel has asked for the right to cross-examine the four.

The fact that the hearings have been set would seem to remove fear that constitutional difficulties in West Germany would prevent examination of the four proposed witnesses. The German constitution forbids application of ex post facto laws in criminal cases, and it was possible that a German judge might refuse to help Israel on the ground that Eichmann was being tried under a law adopted in 1950 long after Eichmann's work was done.

Eichmann's defense counsel, Dr. Robert Servatius, demanded that the four be brought to Israel after the prosecution submitted affidavits which they had made at the Nuremberg war crime trials 15 years ago. When Atty. Gen. Gideon Hausner retorted that the four would be arrested the minute they set foot in Israel, nothing remained but for the Israeli tribunal to request examination of the witnesses before a West German court.

JUDGE TO TESTIFY

When the trial resumes Monday after a weekend recess a scheduled witness is Pennsylvania Supreme Court Justice Michael Musmanno, who presided at the Nuremberg war crimes trial of leaders of Nazi liquidation.

Cuba 'MIGs' Ours, Sen. Morse Says

By WARREN DUFFEE

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., said Sunday the "Russian MIGs" that the Castro government used to help thwart the recent Cuban invasion actually were U.S. planes sent by this country to the old Batista regime.

Morse said his Senate investigation subcommittee heard "not a bit of evidence" that there was a single Russian MIG in Cuba. The committee's witnesses included Allen W. Dulles, head of the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) and Secretary of State Dean Rusk.

At the same time, assistant Senate Democratic leader Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., said the U. S. Joint Chiefs of Staff played a more powerful role in the ill-fated invasion decision than Dulles' CIA or any other group in government. He said that on the whole the CIA did "a fairly good job."

Morse, chairman of the Senate foreign relations subcommittee on Latin America, said on a TV program with Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, R-N.Y., that there has been a lot of misinformation about the extent of Russian arms in Cuba.

"It's proper for me to say that not a bit of evidence was offered our subcommittee by any witness for the administration in support of any allegation that there was a single Russian MIG in Cuba," he said.

"The planes that were used against the planes of the Cuban exiles were American planes that Castro got possession of as a result of our first making them available to ex-dictator Fulgencio Batista."

it played a "small" factor in the decision. He said such a meeting violated the by-laws of the church and the deacons have voted to return the $100 "love offering" the controversial society had given the church for the use of its facilities.

The deacon, who did not identify himself, said the deacons of the church felt Adkins was not leading the downtown church forward as he should. He said the church should have 42 deacons instead of 10, which would give the minister less power.

The 41-year-old pastor said that during his four years at North Atlanta Baptist the church has built a $200,000 educational building, taken in 250 new members, built a parking lot, secured a $40,000 parsonage and taken an offering of $285,000.

The Rev. Mr. Adkins said his future is "in the hands of the Lord."

The sanctuary of the church was full for the called meeting.

A member tried to get the moderator to ask those who were not members to leave but the Rev. Mr. Seigler said it would be "an unwise move."

Many members left after they cast their ballot. Fewer shook hands with the minister afterwards and said "God bless you."

POWERS DENIAL

Won't Stay In Soviet, Flier Says

POUND, Va. (AP)—American U2 pilot Francis Gary Powers has denied categorically reports that he plans to remain in the Soviet Union when he is released from a Soviet prison.

"I am a citizen of the United States and am proud to be one," Powers said in a letter to his parents here. "I might not like all the policies of the U.S. government, but I feel sure there are many millions of people in the United States who disagree with them also."

RELEASED BY FATHER

Powers' letter was released by his father, Oliver Powers, Sunday to Melvin Lang, a reporter for the Roanoke, Va., Times.

The U2 pilot was sentenced to 10 years in prison last August by a Soviet court.

The letter was in response to a newspaper clipping sent to the younger Powers by his father early last month, in which a London reporter was quoted as saying the U2 pilot would be released about May 1 and planned to stay in the Soviet Union.

"I cannot imagine where the correspondent (John Mossman, Moscow correspondent for the London Daily Mail) got his information unless he invented it himself. You may rest assured that I will return home, where I belong and want to be, as soon as I am released. Remaining here has never entered my mind," the flier wrote.

WIFE STAYING AWAY

The flier said he had heard nothing about his wife, Barbara Powers of Milledgeville, Ga., coming to the Soviet Union to live as Mossman had written.

"She said earlier that when I was transferred to a work camp and if I were allowed to see her often, she would want to come and live near the camp until my sentence was up," Powers said.

"If I could see her often enough to make it worthwhile, then I would allow it, but you can rest assured that even if it were allowed, we both would return as soon as my sentence was up."

"Don't worry about my doing anything or giving any cause for my country to doubt me," he reassured his parents. "It looks as if this British correspondent is trying, for some reason I don't know, to tell the people that I have renounced my country. I would never do this."

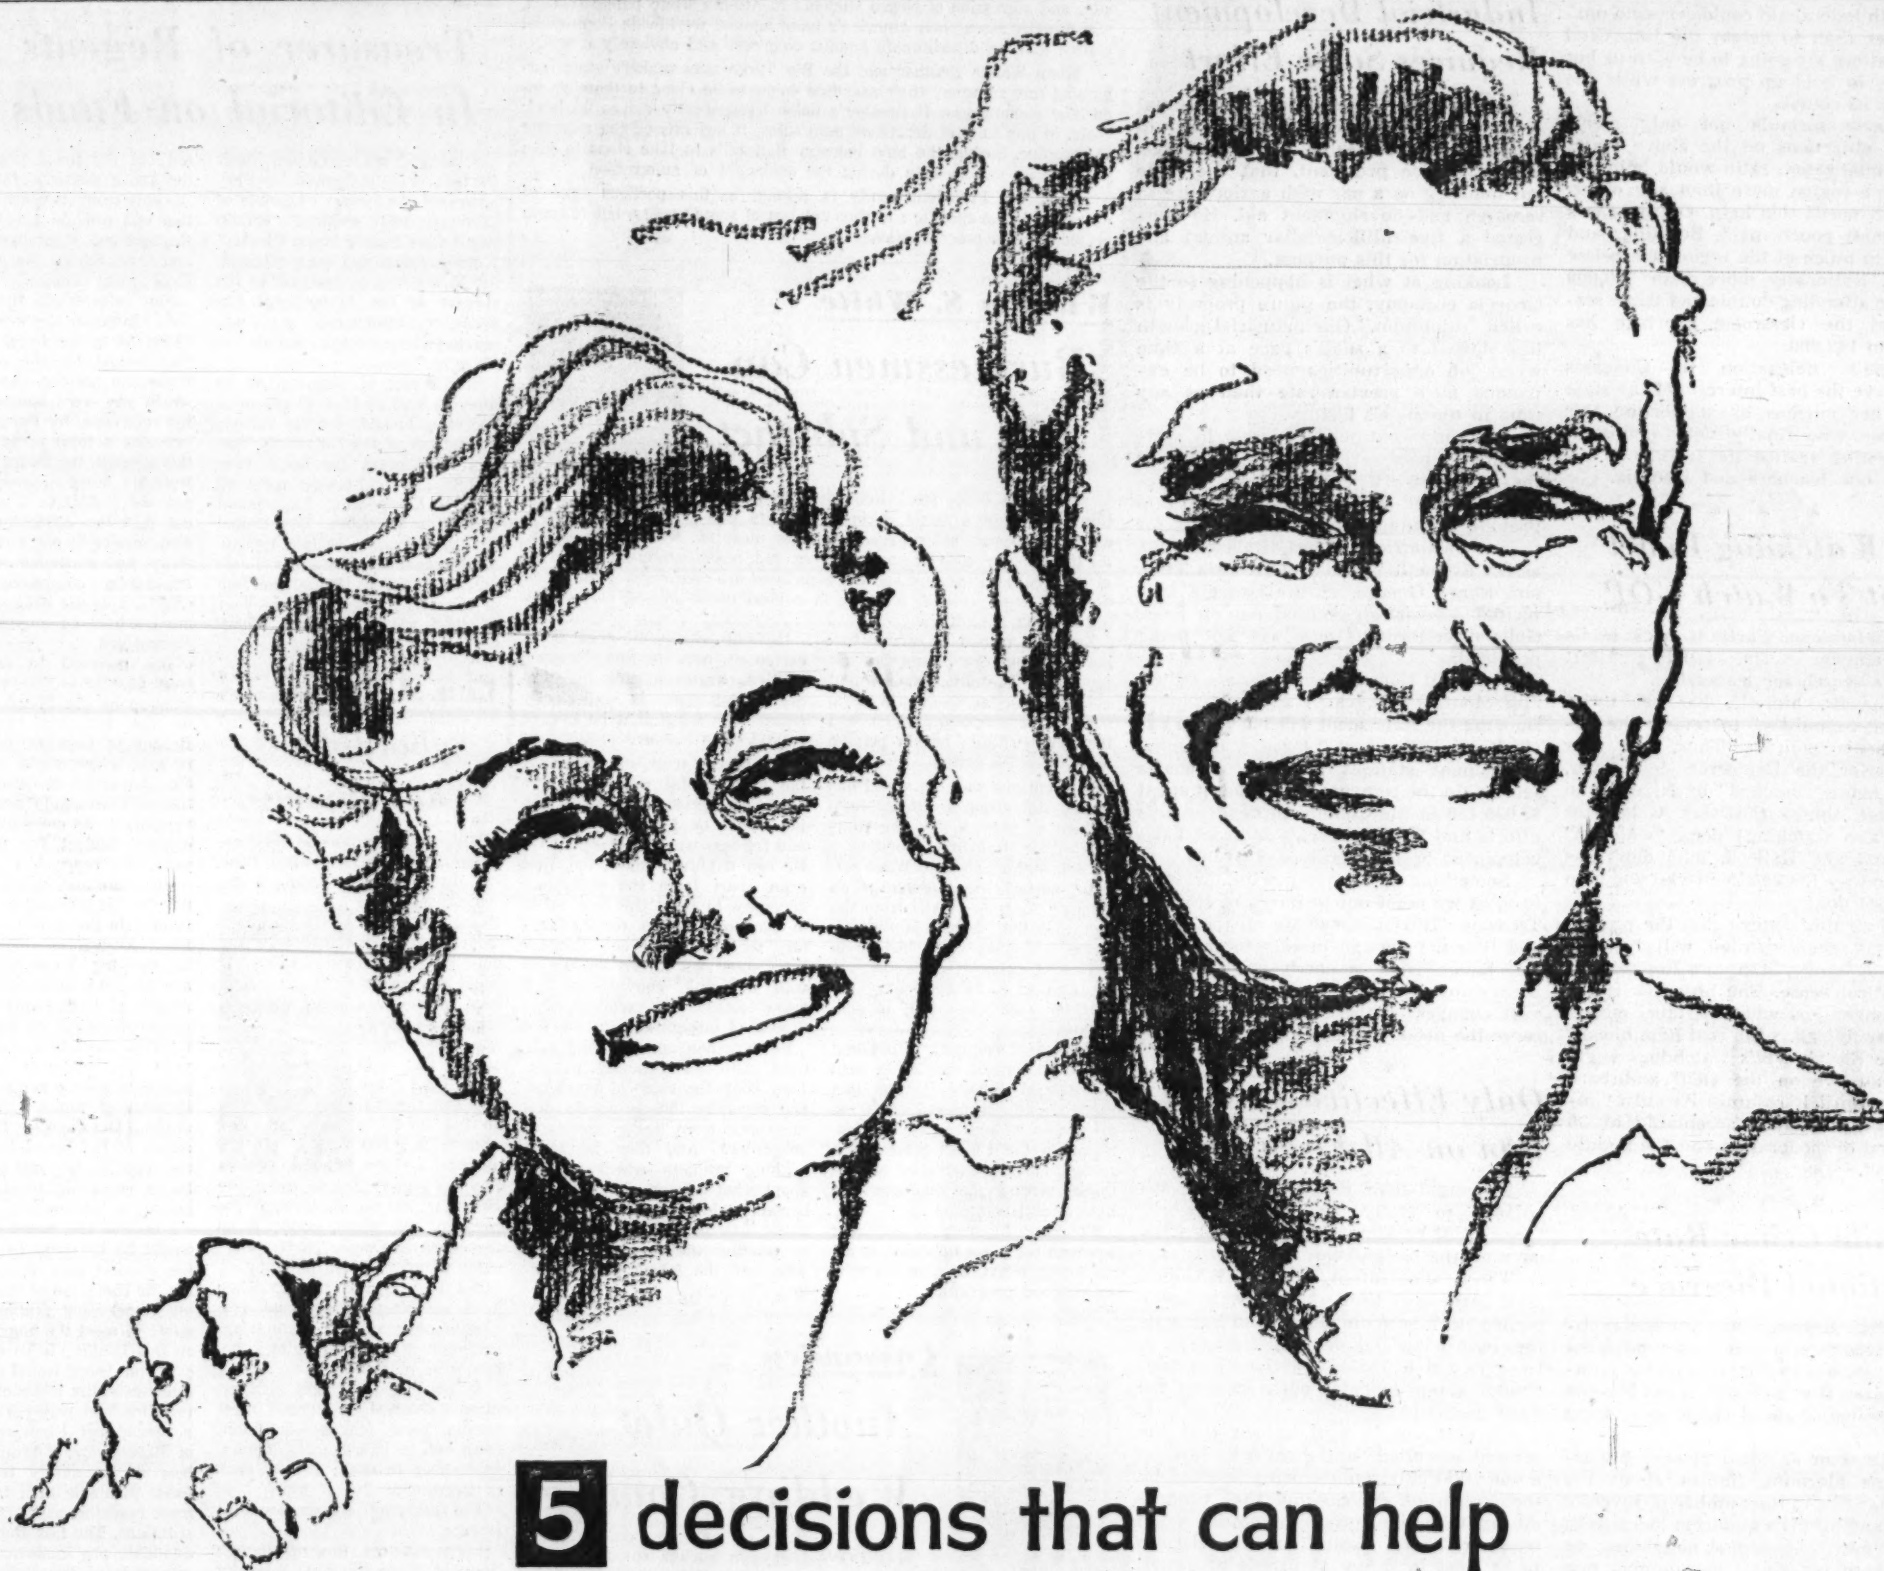

"I was born an American and intend to die an American."

In reference to a remark made by his father about Patrick Henry, Powers wrote: "Henry is remembered, much to his credit, for what he said. It looks as if I will be remembered, much to my discredit, for what some correspondent writes even though there is not a word of truth in what he wrote."

5 decisions that can help a couple look ahead with confidence

How the unique advantages of life insurance make the right decisions easier—bringing peace of mind at the stroke of a pen

- 1 To guarantee the family's protection.
With life insurance, a family is protected right from the start. For only life insurance guarantees, at the stroke of a pen, an amount of money far greater than most couples could save in many years.
- 2 To safeguard the home they love.
A prudent husband safeguards the family home by owning enough life insurance to take care of any unpaid mortgage. Life insurance guarantees this protection.
- 3 To provide the children with a college education.
By figuring in advance what it will cost to give their children a college education, parents can make sure—through their life insurance—that college expenses can be met.
- 4 To accept new opportunity when it comes.
The risks of a new business or job opportunity can be assumed more readily when the family is protected by life insurance. And with life insurance, husband and wife know in advance exactly how much money will be available for an emergency at any given time.

5 To make a plan for a worry-free retirement.

A husband and wife can get more pleasure from their later years when they plan their life insurance to provide a steady income which will last for both their lifetimes.

The wise family head carefully estimates his family's future needs, then plans his life insurance accordingly. Since family circumstances often change, many couples review their programs with their life insurance agent each year. In this way, they get the most from the unique advantages of their life insurance.

School-Aid Formula Is Practical, Fair

The revised federal school-aid bill, approved last Thursday by the Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee, is moving to the decisive stage. It should be speedily enacted.

As approved, the bill is not hamstrung by controversial provisions which have defeated all previous efforts to get such a bill through Congress. Excised are formerly explosive issues on segregation and aid to private and parochial schools.

Aid to private and parochial schools through direct grants clearly is a violation of the U.S. Constitution. A separate bill providing for loans to such institutions will be offered. It may or may not be constitutional but at least it is a worthy gesture to save the program for public schools.

As for the segregation question, this is the domain of the courts and confusing it with federal aid could serve no purpose other than to defeat the bill. Civil rights matters are going to be with us but it is folly to hold up progress while the law takes its course.

The new formula not only meets Southern objections on the above issues but the equalization ratio would help our low income region more than any other. The South needs this help. Our teachers are the most poorly paid. Buildings and facilities in much of the region are below standard. Nationally more than 700,000 pupils are attending double and triple sessions and the classroom shortage has climbed to 142,000.

Georgia's delegation in Congress would serve the best interests of the state and all her citizens by supporting this bill. Those who finally vote against it will be voting against the futures of our children, our teachers and Georgia.

Ike's Watchdog Panel Ought To Watch GOP

The Republican Party is back in its post-Eisenhower form, twisting itself apart in a search for leadership.

Eisenhower, himself, has set up a "watchdog committee" to review the administration's policies. Thus, not four months after the Democrats took over, they are being "watched" by Nixon, who doesn't see things the way Goldwater (who is also watching) does, "watched" by Dirksen and Halleck, who don't see things the way Rockefeller (who wants to watch, too) does.

While all this insures that the present Democratic administration will be well watched, it hardly helps the Republicans in a political sense. The observer is going to wonder just what the label means. Which Republican is the real Republican?

Maybe Eisenhower's watchdogs ought to keep an eye on the GOP and bark warningly until it resumes its only "image" that has proved acceptable in 30 years—that of moderation and the middle of the road.

Juvenile Crime Rate Is National Disgrace

President Kennedy has put the problem of juvenile crime in proper perspective in a message to Congress which properly classifies it as national. It has become one of the major social challenges facing this country.

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover has issued some alarming figures about the spectacular rise in the number of juvenile offenses and offenders and the increase in major crimes by youthful hoodlums. He says flatly it represents our number one domestic problem. He calls for the full glare of publicity upon it and decries the lack of parental responsibility.

Mr. Hoover points out the need for support of youth serving agencies such as the Boys' Clubs of America, which will hold its 55th annual convention next week in Los Angeles. "Building the Citizens of Tomorrow" is the theme of the meeting devoted to finding ways to combat the corruption of our youth.

President Kennedy declared in his message that present trends indicate up to four million youngsters may appear before the courts in the next 10 years. His specific proposals call for demonstration projects and training of more youth workers.

This tragic fact of American life reflects a failure of our society. Its causes are deep-rooted and call for determined action on a national scale. Applying the remedies, however, is the responsibility of local leadership in every community in the land.

Industrial Development Requires Some Effort

Businessmen attending the annual convention of Associated Industries of Georgia heard a plea by Clifford Clarke, executive vice president, that the state put industry on a par with agriculture in research and development aid. He suggested a five-million-dollar annual appropriation for this purpose.

Looking at what is happening to the Georgia economy, the figure properly is called "minimum." Our industrial growth has slowed to a snail's pace at a time when job opportunities need to be expanded at a greater rate than at any time in the state's history.

Certainly continued progress in agriculture is necessary and desirable. But the increased efficiency of farm production makes it all the more necessary to provide expanding markets and jobs for those which efficiency has displaced. And, as Dr. Kenneth Wagner, of Georgia Tech, and Elmer George, of the Georgia Municipal Association pointed out on Press Gallery yesterday, these are not being provided.

Recently Constitution business editor, Jim Montgomery, came up with figures showing the state spent $49,460,961 on agriculture in the past 10 years, including experiment stations and the extension service. In the comparable period, it spent $3,035,450 in the Commerce department's efforts and Georgia Tech's Industrial Development branch received $530,000.

Something is all awry with this picture, as we point out to Board of Regents Treasurer Blisset elsewhere on this page, and it is not enough merely to rationalize. Educational, research and development efforts which take no account of the vast changes in the state are failing to serve the needs of the people.

Only Effective Way Is Ban on All Fireworks

The eight-man House committee appointed to study Georgia's fireworks "laws" will be allowed to spend 70 man-days on the assignment.

These being intelligent men, it should take them less time than that to come forth with a recommendation to ban selling, possessing and shooting fireworks in Georgia and to make violations a serious enough crime to deter even some of the most foolhardy.

Certainly it is well known that the present so-called "anti-fireworks law" is a dud; that children are being maimed by the dangerous devices and that vendors do not take the bother to inquire as to whether "cherry bombs" and the like are to be used to throw at people or crows.

Close-up

Just Wait Until 2015 or Longer?

Statistics, or "statics" as baseball announcer Dizzy Dean calls them, can sound real impressive. Take, for instance, the fact that Georgia's rate of increase in per capita personal income was seventh highest among all states in the past decade. Our 59.5 per cent leap forward was from a sitting position. The 50 per cent jump by the nation as a whole was from an advanced point.

So before clapping our hands too vigorously at a per capita income of $1,622, let us hark back a moment to a recent news story by Constitution Business Editor Jim Montgomery. In it an Atlanta economist figured that if Georgia continues to close the gap at the rate it did during the past 10 years, we will catch up with the rest of the nation in the year 2015.

This business of waiting about 55 years to be on par with all other states need not be. But unless we develop our potential to a greater extent than was the case in the Fabulous (?) Fifties, we are likely to continue to rock along about eighth from the bottom among states—the same position we held in both 1950 and 1960—for a few more decades.

We can and must place more emphasis upon research as a means of laying a firmer foundation for industrial development and expansion.

We cannot allow the steel plant, which some thought was definitely to be built at Georgetown, to slip through our fingers to the eager arms of Alabama. This tug of war is an example of how fierce competition is between states to bring in a $30 million mill. Fortunately, Georgia has a head start in the race and still should emerge the winner. But we cannot afford any complacency.

New markets must be found for Georgia products, a necessity which Gov. Vandiver recognizes and is taking action upon. We need to export more and in order to do that we not only will have to have highly desirable products but the salesmanship essential to convincing prospective buyers.

Our educational system must be in step with the times. This is the heartbeat for economic progress. If we elect an irresponsible governor who places demagoguery above education, school will be out in more ways than one.

In fact, you could then forget about the year 2015 for catching up and just hope that maybe some feat will be accomplished a few centuries hence when perhaps better candidates will emerge than those presently stumping around with their threadbare promises.

President Gave Us Certain Hints

Doubters are beginning to mutter that President Kennedy ought to spell out what he means when he asks for sacrifice. The muttering is justifiable. He probably wants to keep down the dust until he can coax Congress into passing some bills, but he clearly has shied from specifics so far.

When he starts to gore some oxen, though, the bellowing will sound like colic time at the King Ranch; we in the press got the first goring, the "self-restraint" edict, so we know. Probably the President hopes the herd will pick its path and go without being driven. He has laid certain hints before the nation and they are worth examining by all who want to know what he means specifically by the general term "sacrifice."

He clearly does not mean for the principal sacrifice to come out of the hides of the have-nots, by delaying fulfillment of their needs, because he believes America must lead abroad by the power of its own example. The haves will get the tab for the rising minimum wage, the measures to relieve unemployment, the housing program—and this money bite will be a quite specific sacrifice. Growth in the stimulated gross national product ought to repay it later. But the sacrificial pain is now.

Last week's story of two Atlanta detectives buying groceries for a starving family of good quality, while the unemployed husband hunted work, indicates a pretty basic sacrifice is already being made by the have-nots.

Everybody who pays taxes will sacrifice a little to bring federal aid into schools. In Georgia, where nearly one out of every four persons is functionally illiterate, the sacrifice is due. Financing health insurance for old people under social security will require money sacrifice by employer and employee alike.

Kennedy believes these measures to meet domestic need and spur growth are vital sinews in the intangible body of national strength, and as such, represent sacrifices directly related to the fight against communism.

Less prosaic issues that pit us more directly against the Communists in the world cockpit are also being put on the sacrificial block—more money for space, for conventional arms, for foreign aid.

Attorney General Kennedy laid the racial issue on the line in Athens when he said graduation of the Negro students at the university, and admission of Negro students to Atlanta white public schools, will directly strengthen America's hand against worldwide Communist claims that we discriminate against Negroes. And obviously it will.

When Walter Reuther and the Big Three auto makers start bargaining this summer, their sacrifice ought to be clear to them as industrial pacemakers. If Reuther's union irresponsibly drives up labor costs, in this time of depressed auto sales, it has missed the meaning of sacrifice. So has the auto industry if it fails to take steps to give job security reassurance during the onslaught of automation.

What the President really is asking, in this perilous time of near-war, is the specific sacrifice not just of some profits, but of some prejudices and preconceptions.

William S. White

Businessmen Can Add and Subtract

WASHINGTON—The Kennedy administration has made a basic decision that its new approach foreign aid program requires most of all the friendly help of conservatives and businessmen-conservatives at that. So the President and his associates are now doing some bland and high-level personal lobbying in a good cause among corporation owners and executives.

Kennedy, in fact, is quietly trying to set up two pro-foreign aid committees within business and industry, one of them willing to support his program publicly and the other willing, but in private only, to do the same.

In a curious way the wheel has turned full circle since the forerunner of foreign aid, the Marshall Plan, was first proposed a decade and a half ago. What actually pushed the Marshall Plan through Congress—apart from the fact that the Soviet Communists chose that moment in history to assault Czechoslovakia—was not the support of foreign policy experts or even necessarily of politicians.

Nor was it primarily a national desire to extend charitable help to ravaged Europe, though this motive was not absent. Most of all it was simply the careful fostering in the United States of a recognition of enlightened self-interest among the business and agricultural communities.

President Kennedy is returning to much the same approach in his gathering effort to save his new foreign aid program.

Another Quiet Wedding Coming

LONDON—Always a sucker for the sweet-heart business ever since Fairy Princess Grace Kelly came coyly out from under a bank of violets and shyly married Prince Rainier in ear-splitting secrecy in Monte Carlo, I am all of a tizzy about the latest romance of King Hussein, the ruler of Jordan.

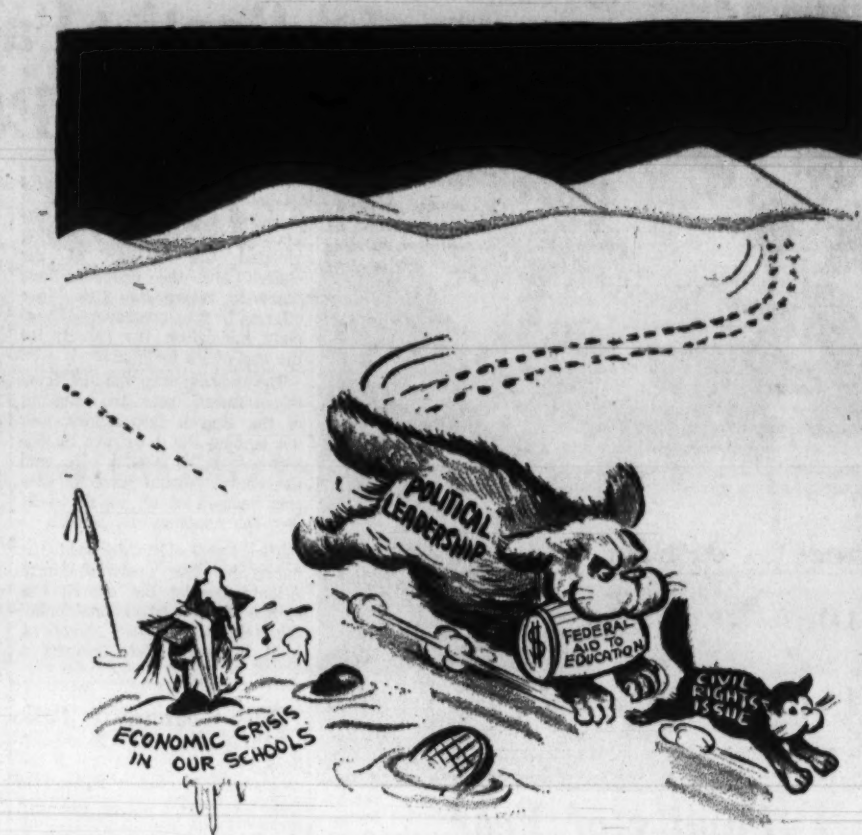

This brave young lad with an impeccable British background (Harrow and Sandhurst) has just announced his engagement to Miss Toni Gardiner, the daughter of Lieut. Col. W. P. Gardiner.

Like Miss Kelly and Prince Charming of Monaco, they too plan to have a "wedding without ceremony or pretentiousness," which probably means that the Royal Salutes will be restricted to six-inch howitzers, only one squadron of jet fighters will take part in the low fly-past and intimate friends of the family at the wedding breakfast will be restricted to four figures.

In a memorable broadcast with hundreds of thousands listening, King Hussein sternly remarked that "this is a completely personal matter in which no one has a right or place."

Having warned them off the course and then welcomed them back on the track, the King then went on to describe his love in terms that any heart throbbing sob sister solving the cares of the love-lorn would envy.

"At last," he cried, "I have found in the daughter of this family the girl of my dreams. How many times did I know loneliness

Treasurer of Regents Raps Comparison In Editorial on Funds Used for Research

Atlanta—I am concerned about the inaccurate statements and implications in your editorial of May 11, 1961, entitled "Won't Cure State's Worst Illness." I assume that you were attempting to make a comparison in the support of the Agricultural Experiment Stations and the Engineering Experiment Station of Georgia Tech.

The Board of Regents at its meeting held on May 10 approved operating budgets for the various institutions of the University System of Georgia for fiscal year 1961-62. The total budget approved for the Engineering Experiment Station is $4,696,000. The budget for the operation of the Agricultural Experiment Stations totals $4,034,570, or less than 37 per cent of the amount set forth in your editorial as having been "allocated" in the fiscal year 1960. Of the above amounts, the Board of Regents from its State Appropriation will provide $717,000 for the Engineering Experiment Station and $2,037,000 for the Agricultural Experiment Stations.

You referred to the fact that the Extension Service received $9,294,758 in the fiscal year 1960. The budget for the Agricultural Extension Service, the agency to which you were apparently making reference, for the year 1961-62 provides a total of $3,984,570. Of this amount, the Board of Regents from its State Appropriation will provide $1,820,000. I would point out that the Agricultural Extension Service is not a research activity, and inasmuch as you were apparently comparing research efforts, I do not believe this operation should be included in your comparison.

You referred to an increase from $150,000 to $175,000 in the allocation by the Board of Regents to the Industrial Development Branch of Georgia Tech's Engineering Experiment Station and the University of Georgia's Institute of Community and Area Development. As compared with the original budget for the current year, this represents an increase in the state appropriation of $175,000. Of this amount, $100,000 is allocated to the Industrial Development Branch of Georgia Tech's Engineering Experiment Station and $75,000 is to be used by the Institute of Community and Area Development of the University of Georgia. During the current fiscal year, the Board of Regents approved a special non-recurring allocation of $100,000 for the Industrial Development Branch. The action of the board in approving the budget for 1961-62 provides for a recurring increase in the budget of this branch.

I believe the Board of Regents would be the first to agree that the support now being provided for the operation of the Engineering Experiment Station is inadequate to meet the heavy demands on this facility. In so doing, however, the board would point to the many essential needs of its 19 universities and colleges which are not being met. I believe the Board of Regents has attempted to the best of its ability to allot the funds available to it to meet the most essential needs of all its institutions. The fact that the funds available are inadequate to meet all needs of the University System should be of concern to all Georgians whether they be interested in industrial or agricultural development.

JAMES A. BLISSIT, Treasurer, Regents.

Editor's Note: Thanks to Mr. Blissit for detailing the figures on appropriations. What we gave, unintentionally, as totals for fiscal year, actually represented state expenditures for the period from July 1, 1950, through June 30, 1960. The fact remains that the Georgia Tech Industrial Development Branch has received only $530,000 since its founding in 1956 through June 30 of this year. And as Mr. Blissit says, the $175,000 allocation for next year represents no increase over the current year. Georgia is spending pitifully little on industrial research compared to need.

Service Physicians Called the 'Finest'

Atlanta—After reading the full-page advertisement from the American Medical Association, I could not refrain from answering it. I am surprised to hear that just because medical care would be under Social Security that it would lower the quality of health care.

Do they mean they would not care as much for their patient as before? That is what it sounds like to me.

I am in a group possibly considered by the medical association as being socialized. All my medical care is obtained at Army, Navy and veteran hospitals. I have also been treated by civilian doctors. I must admit the doctors serving with the armed forces are by far the finest group of doctors I have ever had attend me and my family. They aren't paid a penny more than their regular salary no matter how many patients they have to see. Yet they are thorough and very dedicated. I would place my very life in their hands knowing that the government has set down all the rules and regulations concerning the operation of the medical care.

But this does not bother me at all. And the reason why is this. Any man who becomes a doctor is a doctor first and a citizen second. If he is a truly dedicated doctor he will treat his patient to the best of his ability no matter who sets the policy for operation of a hospital, a medical care program or what have you.

Americans Urged

To Use Their Vote

Atlanta — I would like to quote from President Kennedy's note of April 18 to Premier Khrushchev:

"Where the people are denied the right of choice, recourse to such a struggle is the only means of achieving their liberties."

Let's underscore the first nine words of this remark. Now, let's use those same nine words in relation to the present domestic troubles that beset most of America today.

Almost every day, you read in the papers that "The Freedom of Choice" has been abrogated in some form or other.

If one operates a restaurant, in a place of business (department store), or parking garage, privately owned, it seems that you will not be able to choose your customers.

Now, how about freedom of choice in the school situation? What shall our recourse be in the freedom of choice of who shall be associated with our children in the classrooms of our schools?

Freedom of choice and individual liberties are slowly but surely being by-passed and nullified in the American way of life simply because most Americans are too lazy or unwilling to assume an active role in selecting, by VOTE, able representatives at every level of government.

Too long have we had representation by the minority, too long have our elections been usurped by the BLOCK VOTERS. In the name of justice and freedom of choice, wake up Americans, come out into the open and fight for real freedom of choice. Vote. Vote. Vote.

Were 28 on Tower 'Obeying the Law?'

Atlanta — In the military, the penalty for deliberate disobedience of an order ranges from imprisonment to execution. The 28 men who died in the radar tower collapse on Jan. 15 all knew it to be unsafe, but they were ordered to remain.

Tell me, are the needless deaths of these 28 men excusable because they were, in effect obeying the "Law of the Land"?

The Star of the Rehearsal Wasn't Bride or Groom but the Judge

"That," said a startled spectator, "is really what I call going off the deep end." Like some other silly souls he stood as Mr. George Edward Krasle and Miss Sara Janice Martin rehearsed a wedding which was to take place under water last Saturday. "I didn't get married underwater," offered another bystander at the Heart of Atlanta pool, "but I've been under ever since."

The bride was wearing a skin-tight, solid yellow diving suit that would serve as wedding apparel. Oh yes, she wore white. An even lighter white bathing suit was under the diving gear. Instead of a veil of lace Miss Sara Martin's face was covered with a plastic mask which was connected to a microphone.

Through this the "I do" would be heard by hundreds at pool-side.

The groom, George Edward Krasle chose solid black, the suit he wore in becoming the No. 1 diver in the Underwater Society of America.

Star of the rehearsal, however, was neither groom nor bride-elect.

It had to be the man who would marry the couple: Fulton Criminal Court Judge Charles A. Wofford.

All said he was some sport. "I've never been under water in one of those things," said the youthful, fast-talking jurist when he spied the suits.

"Gene Vezzani called and asked if I could marry a couple of friends of his," Judge Wofford said. "Yes," I told him. "And then he told me what it was I had gotten into."

The judge came with a set sermon after diving enthusiast David D. Powell, an ordained Methodist minister decided not to go down and do the nuptials after "consultations" with his bishop.

"Dearly beloved," he had typed, and it was put in plastic for him to read during the ceremony. "We are assembled here . . . to join together George and Sara . . ."

Communications that were to join together George Krasle, Atlanta's most daring aquanaut, and Sara Martin, an Alabama underwater ace he met in the waters of the Bahamas were all wet. They cooed, called, and counted but about all that came up were bubbles. Not the first, "I do."

"How's the water?" poolside participants would ask. It looked cold. "He'll be in plenty of hot water from now on," another added.

South to the Bahamas the newlyweds will go for their honeymoon.

It may be the strangest of all time.

Swimming all day beneath the surf, among the coral, and if they want more of it what's to keep them from locking the door, shutting tight the windows of their bedroom, turning on the tap in the bathtub, and waiting for the water to rise.

Like lunches with his old Cabinet. They had urgent business: Working out a new defense policy—for use next month when Sherman Adams' memoirs are published.

New York City's campaign to get male subway riders to give their seats to women failed. Nobody's sure what happened to chivalry, but it didn't go underground.

2 Million Book Loans Set Record

By HERMAN HANCOCK

An all-time record of knowledge-thirsty persons borrowed 2,099,648 books and asked 258,000 questions of the reference department, a 1960 report of the Atlanta Public Library shows.

Miss Alma Jamison, who acted as director until John Jacobs, new director, took over early in 1961, released the report Sunday.

She was named to serve after former Director John Settemeyer left the post earlier in 1960.

BUCKHEAD LEADS

The circulation was from the main library, 15 branches, three bookmobiles and two deposits.

Although the main library circulated 339,729 books of all types, the Ida Williams branch at Buckhead outstripped the main office, lending 369,864 books of all types. In addition, the library system lent 118,917 records; 7,230 prints of paintings; 1,038 motion picture films, and 188 film strips.

The Atlanta Public Library serves a population of 597,658 and a 531.4-square-mile area including the city, Fulton County, College Park and Hapeville. Total cost of operations was $809,044, of which $553,626 went for salaries and wages.

MOST POPULAR

Most frequently sought books were those dealing with Africa, Laos, Indonesia, Cuba, South America and southeastern Asia, those nations in international news.

Travel continues in heavy demand, and books on diet, health and inspirational themes also were extremely popular, Miss Jamison reported. The system has 103,856 registered members entitled to full use of the facilities.

NEW VOLUMES ADDED

A total of 46,726 new volumes added during the year pushed the total books to 568,455. The library subscribes to 445 magazines and 72 newspapers. During the year 1,698 new records pushed the total available to 9,121; 22 additional films, three film strips and 70 new framed prints also were acquired.

There are now 523 films, 153 film strips, and 820 framed prints of paintings.

Miss Jamison complained about lack of personnel, which she attributed to lack of funds and inadequate salaries to keep the Atlanta library competitive.

Minow Says Letters Back TV Criticism

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Federal Communications Chief Newton N. Minow said Sunday that hundreds of viewers—including President John F. Kennedy—have supported his demand for better television programs.

He said many members of Congress also liked the speech last week in which he told the National Association of Broadcasters that much of TV is a "vast wasteland."

"I don't think all of them (the lawmakers) agreed with me entirely," he said, "but I have found a very friendly response."

Minow, chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, said he was surprised at public response to the lecture he gave the broadcasters, since he had said the same thing before.

Time for Church To Examine Self

Unless the Christian church points men to God it has no right to exist. There are those who try to reduce the function of the church to a high class community center. I heard a serious indictment against the church during a recent visit to another state. The man was talking about the church to which he belonged. It would be more accurate to say the church which belonged to him.

He began by saying, "I'm not a good Christian, but I see some things in the life of my church that ought to be changed. There isn't much difference," he continued, "in the club to which I belong and the church. We dine, dance, and drink at the club. Then, we dine, dance and pray at the church. About the only difference I see is that we drink at the club and pray at the church."

There is a mighty big difference in drinking at the club and praying at church so far as I am concerned. Perhaps we can learn something from this man who makes no claim to be as good as he knows he ought to be. When the church becomes engaged in a lot of activities and neglects its purpose of worship it has miserably failed the Master whose name it bears. It is not enough for the church to be busy, it must be busy doing the right things.

It is high time for the church to re-examine itself in the light of the great command, "Go therefore and make disciples of all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit." (Matthew 28:19.) There are many things the church ought to do, but there is one thing it must do if it remains true to its purpose. It must seek with unrelenting effort to bring all men to know God. Anything less than this reduces the church to a social club with a high moral standard.

"The church faces a generation," remarked someone, "which is trying to drink its way to prosperity, war its way to peace, spend its way to wealth and enjoy its way to heaven."

Horace Bushnell has reminded us that "Persecution has not crushed the church; power has not beaten it back; time has not abated its forces; and what is most wonderful of all, the abuses of its friends have not shaken its stability." Those of us who bear the name of the church can retard its growth and impede its influence unless we stand up and march in its ranks like true soldiers.

Some years ago there was a cartoon picturing Uncle Sam standing on the Ship of State. He was speaking to the representatives of the Christian faith: "It is your business to keep off the Ship of State the barnacles of greed, selfishness and dishonesty."

We are less than a church when our activities accomplish anything less than causing men to give themselves to God.

Potomac Fever

A drug industry spokesman predicts higher medical bills. If a few doctors would reveal their fee-setting system to the U.S. big-booster rocket program, we'd have a man on the moon tomorrow.

G.O.P. chairman Morton says his party is "on the march." No doubt about that. The only question is when it will decide who's leading it where.

Like lunches with his old Cabinet. They had urgent business: Working out a new defense policy—for use next month when Sherman Adams' memoirs are published.

New York City's campaign to get male subway riders to give their seats to women failed. Nobody's sure what happened to chivalry, but it didn't go underground.

Dr. Letson's Plan to Put Gifted In 'Groups' Just Isn't Practical

Dr. John Letson, Atlanta school superintendent, has displayed wisdom and discretion in his plans for preparing students for a peaceable, incident-free integration of schools next fall—a move which people of goodwill approve wholeheartedly. But for the life of me I can't understand his latest recommendations to the board about the gifted children. The recommendations, which I understand are still to be considered and acted on by the board, would deny the gifted children of Atlanta a special school but would keep them where they are in special "groups."

Now really, Dr. Letson. What groups?

The Metropolitan Association for Gifted Children, whose work I have attended with considerable interest, submitted to the school board a list of 150 children whose parents are ready to enroll them immediately in a special school. That list has since been expanded to 200. What kind of groups would that constitute, scattered over the entire system? It would mean one child in this school, six in that one, maybe a dozen in another one.

Is it going to be practical to assign one teacher to groups of that size?

The Metropolitan Association's suggestion, which, incidentally, is still before the board, is that Clark Howell school, one of the oldest schools in the Northeast section, which has been losing students steadily, be designated as a school for the gifted. Many Atlanta citizens regard Clark Howell, the old Tenth Street School, with great affection. It is the alma mater of many prominent people whose families made the pioneer trek from downtown Atlanta to the northside half a century ago. Margaret Mitchell was a pupil there.

Now Clark Howell school has empty rooms. It is gradually becoming less a school and more a place for storage and offices.

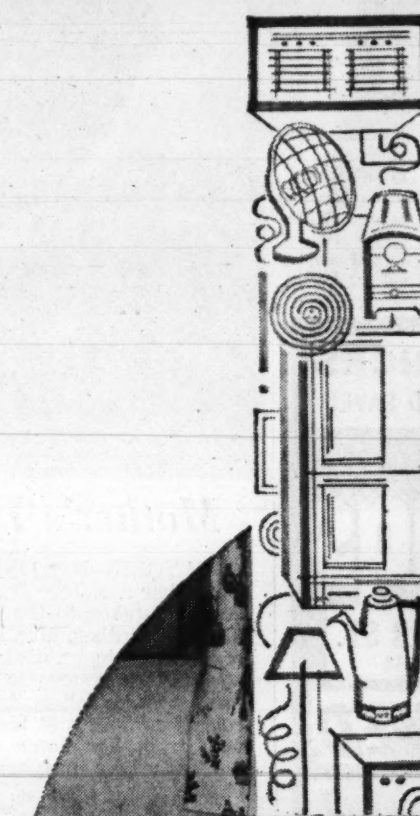

The Metropolitan Association proposed that the small children who still go there, pupils of the first three grades, continue there as a matter of convenience to mothers who want to keep them close to home. It proposed that the pupils in the other four grades move to Spring Street or Samuel Inman, which are either in walking distance or a short bus ride from the area. And then it asks that gifted children in the first three grades be placed in Clark Howell. These would come from all parts of the city but their parents are willing to shoulder the burden of transportation to insure suitable education for youngsters who at best will be isolated and singled out if left where they are.

This is not a whole school, as parents of the gifted would like to see, but it is a beginning. The first three grades are important to any child but doubly important to the exceptionally bright child who in many instances has been reading and writing since he was three years old. It would be a good way of testing the effectiveness of the parents' contention that a special school is needed.

Why not give it a try?

Everything and the kitchen sink

THIS MODERN homemaker has found one answer to kitchen drudgery—a compact, electric food waste disposer. There's hardly a chore around the house that electricity can't do—or help you do! It washes your clothes, prepares your food, and does your dishes.

That is only part of your wonderful world of electrical living. There are more than 60 different appliances on the market. Many others are on the way.

Only one thing compares with the convenience of electricity. That's its low, low price. Through the years the trend in the price per kilowatt-hour has been downward. It still is.

Convenience and economy—a hard combination to beat. Yet you get both when you put electricity to work in your home.

Why not make your home truly modern? Why not make it all-electric?

Pope Calls for World To Wipe Out Hunger

By ARNALDO CORTESI

ROME — Pope John XXIII called Sunday for international cooperation in a well-planned and boldly executed worldwide attack on hunger and poverty.

The Pope spoke at a celebration of the 70th anniversary of an encyclical on social principles issued by Pope Leo XIII on May 15, 1891.

Pope John said he had written an encyclical on the 70th year of Pope Leo's letter. The pontiff declared his encyclical would be published within a few weeks.

PONDER DEEPLY

The Pope said he hoped Roman Catholics everywhere would read his encyclical carefully and ponder it deeply. The encyclical, the Pope said, will consist of four parts.

The first part will recapitulate the teachings on social and labor questions of Pope Leo XIII, Pope

Pius I and Pope Pius XII. The second will outline a group of still impending "problems of social action."

The third will list some "grave and at times dangerous new problems." The fourth will show how the "problems of social living together" can be "recompensed" in the light of the church's teachings.

What is needed, he said, is a "disinterested and multifaceted initiative designed to place great capital and intelligent technical knowledge at the disposal of the economically under-developed countries."

PART OF STATEMENT

Pope John said in part: "A problem of world proportions that interests and engages the anguished attention of our apostolic ministry with the cooperation of those who believe and live in Christ and His church is that of need, poverty, and hunger that grip millions and millions of human lives.

"From this follows the deterioration, that is sometimes a cruel reality, of relations between communities that are economically developed and those that are economically under-developed.

"The principle of solidarity between all human beings must be emphasized and exalted. It is necessary to recall and preach the duty for communities and individuals that have an abundance of means of subsistence to go in aid of those who are in a difficult condition."

FROM 58 COUNTRIES

The Pope was speaking to several tens of thousands of workers, mostly from all parts of Italy but representing also 58 other countries in all continents of the world.

The ceremony came at the end of a magnificent spring day of sunshine to a vast concourse of workers gathered to celebrate the 70th anniversary of the encyclical letter "Rerum Novarum" (Of New Things).

"Rerum Novarum," so called from the first two words of its Latin text, was issued by Pope Leo XIII on May 15, 1891.

It's been called the "Magna Charta of Christian Social Principles."

Spent It on Hi-Fi, High Living, Suspect in $19,000 Theft Says

NEW YORK (UPI)—A 44-year-old bank teller charged with embezzling $19,000 from a Patcoque, N.Y., bank early in 1959 to finance his love for high fidelity music and high living finally surrendered to the FBI Sunday with only 15 cents in his pocket.

The suspect, William C. Radcliffe, abandoned his wife and two children after he allegedly skipped with the bank's money on Feb. 13, 1959—only three weeks after he was employed at the Patcoque bank. He had been missing since.

The FBI said Radcliffe told agents he spent the money to buy a hi-fi record player; hundreds of dollars worth of records; and to take trips to various cities and resorts.

In addition to setting up a lavishly furnished apartment in Baltimore, Md., the FBI said, he made trips to Cleveland, Ohio; Oak Ridge, Tenn.; Raleigh, N.C.; Savannah, Ga.; Virginia Beach, Va., and Ocean City, Md.

The FBI said that Radcliffe, who hadn't worked a day since he left the bank, carried a private detective's badge to impress people and that when he gave himself up at FBI headquarters here, he had in his possession phony gold deputy sheriff and investigator badges.

If convicted of embezzlement, Radcliffe could receive a maximum of five years in prison and a $5,000 fine.

Mother's Day Tragedy

NEW YORK—Mrs. Obdulia Rodriguez weeps as she clasps her son, Jose Jr., 7, at a New York hospital. Jose was taken to the hospital for treatment after his grandmother, Mrs. Rufenda Rosado, 48, mother of Mrs. Rodriguez, died under wheels of a bus, after pushing the youngster to safety. He escaped with bruises as he fell against a curb. The tragedy occurred as Jose and his grandmother were on the way from her home to church to offer special Mother's Day prayers. Monrovia Parley Was Big Success

By MIKE MAHONEY

Constitution Correspondent

MONROVIA, Liberia — The tumult and the shouting dies; the captains and the kings depart. And so, Sunday, the capital of this Ohio-sized West African nation was rapidly returning to its normal moving pace so rudely interrupted by the historic five-day Monrovia conference which ended here Friday.

Twenty independent African countries were represented at the conference, 15 of them by heads-of-state.

In the opinion of most observers, the meeting was a resounding success and a definite feather-in-the-cap for Liberia's 65-year-old President William Tubman, initiator of the conference.

APARTHEID CONDEMNED

The only states not attending were the five Casablanca powers—the United Arab Republic, Morocco, Ghana, Guinea, Mali—the uncommitted Sudan, Congo (Leopoldville) and South Africa were not invited.

Some important resolutions passed by the 20 participating nations were:

1. Condemnation of South Africa's practice of apartheid and a call for total economic and political boycott of that country.
2. A pledge of material and moral support for the Angolan Nationalists who were fighting to free their country from Portuguese colonial domination.
3. Unqualified support for U.N. efforts to bring order out of chaos in the Congo and censure of countries which take sides with any rival groups there. (This was an obvious reference to the Casablanca powers, all of whom have formally recognized the Stanleyville regime of Antoine Gizenga.)
4. Support for the forthcoming peace talks to be held between France and the Algerian insurgents on the question of an independent Algeria.
5. A plea to all nuclear powers to bring about a cessation of nuclear stock-piles and explosions.

6. Agreement to hold another conference of independent African states soon in Lagos, Nigeria.

DISPUTE EASED

The only fly in the ointment of conference solidarity was the bitter feeling which arose during certain sessions between Somalia and Ethiopia over a long-standing border dispute.

At one point Ethiopia threatened to walk out of the conference over this issue, but was calmed down by Nigeria's Prime Minister Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa.

A resolution finally was passed by the delegates which called for a written appeal to be made by the executive authority of the conference to Haile Selassie, emperor of Ethiopia, and the president of Somalia, Aden Abdullah Owman, to make renewed efforts towards an early solution of their frontier disputes.

The above resolution was passed in the last few minutes of the conference and seemed to mollify both parties.

Lash Urged For Rapists, Robbers

DOVER, Del. (AP)—More than a year ago, an employee at a gasoline station owned by State Sen. Jesse F. Watson was beaten and robbed. As a result, the senator is trying to make whipping a mandatory punishment for armed robbery and rape.

"People don't usually do anything unless a personal interest or experience gets them started, and I'm no exception," the senator explained Sunday.

"Something has got to be done about the growing rate of violent crimes. They call whipping old-fashioned, but clothing designers have revived hats which were fashionable 30 years ago and they've sold. Maybe whipping will come back, too."

Watson, 34, who voted with the majority to abolish capital punishment in Delaware, has been the principal sponsor of two whipping bills. The first was passed by the Legislature last year, but was vetoed by Republican Gov. J. Caleb Boggs, now a U.S. senator. He called it barbaric.

The second has been reported out of Senate committee, and Watson says he'll bring it to the floor soon. But Gov. Elbert N. Carvel—a Democrat like Watson—already has indicated that he will veto the measure. He calls whipping uncivilized.

Delaware has been whipping criminals since colonial times, but the penalty has always been optional. It was commonly imposed through the 1930s, but no judge has exercised his option since 1952.

WANTS IT MANDATORY

Now, Watson's bill would make whipping mandatory for men convicted of armed robbery and rape. A cat o' nine tails would be applied to the bare back while the prisoner was strapped to one of the whipping posts still standing at the three county correctional institutions.

A first offense would mean a minimum of 10 lashes, a maximum of 20. Two or more convictions would draw at least 20 lashes. Women, and children of "tender age," would continue to be excluded.

Watson, who lives in the small town of Townsend, says he's ready to consider a better deterrent for crime, but none has been suggested. He married a school teacher recently. She favors the bill.

Science Shrinks Piles New Way Without Surgery Stops Itch—Relieves Pain

New York, N. Y. (Special) — For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids, stop itching, and relieve pain—without surgery.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by a doctor's observations. Pain was relieved promptly. And, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place. And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where a doctor's observations were continued over a period of many months! In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of 10 to 20 years' standing. All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®)—the discovery of a world-famous research institution. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body. This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H®. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug counters.

Kennedy May See Soviet Boss

face-to-face meeting. Shortly after Kennedy's election last November and even before his inaugural Jan. 20, there were repeated informal suggestions from Soviet diplomatic sources that the time was ripe for a Kennedy-Khrushchev meeting.

CHANGES MIND

But Kennedy's reaction at that time—especially before inauguration—was completely negative, and it softened little after he took office. His advice to the Russians, given publicly and privately, was that they should seek to improve the world atmosphere through traditional diplomatic channels. He went out of his way to emphasize his personal confidence in the U.S. ambassador in Moscow, Llewellyn Thompson, as his plenipotentiary empowered to negotiate.

Now, in the wake of the disastrous and abortive anti-Castro invasion attempt in Cuba and the deterioration of the Western position in Laos, the new President apparently has changed his mind to a considerable degree. Informed sources said he now felt that a talk at the highest level might be helpful to preservation of a truly neutral Laos and for any progress toward an acceptable nuclear testing ban agreement.

ALLIES TO OBJECT?

But it still remains to be seen how the Western allied powers, and especially President De Gaulle of France, would react to a summit meeting of the "Big 2" to the exclusion of the other members of the "Big 4," meaning Britain and France. This too might be a hurdle to any final agreement to a Kennedy-Khrushchev conference.

Kennedy has not been slow to abandon the traditional diplomatic channels, and to engage instead in the kind of "personal diplomacy" tried before him by Presidents Wilson, Roosevelt, Eisenhower and, to a lesser extent, Truman.

So far as Khrushchev is concerned, it is difficult to read his state of mind, since his public speeches in the Soviet Union shift violently from seeming moderation to harsh attacks upon the United States and its leadership.

The last time Khrushchev met with an American president was in May, 1960 in Paris when he charged that President Eisenhower personally had made an allied summit meeting impossible because of the U2 spy plane shot down deep inside the Soviet Union on May 1 of that year. He demanded that Eisenhower apologize as the price of getting the conference under way. Eisenhower refused, and the summit talks collapsed even before they had begun.

As a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination at that time, Kennedy, then senator from Massachusetts, said during the Oregon primary that the President might have expressed "regrets," if this would have been effective in keeping the summit conference going.

Laos Delegate Split Stalls Geneva Talk

Souanna Phouma's neutralists—would have been nominated to attend the meeting by a sponsoring power.

Responsibility for accepting the nominations and admitting each of the three groups to the conference would have been vested in the co-chairmen. Thus the United States would have avoided the onus of accepting the entrance of the Pathet Lao into the conference.

The proposal concluded with a paragraph that it was hoped would prevent the three Laotian delegations from turning the meetings into a forum for airing their disagreements. This stipulated that the conference should deal only with the international aspects of the future of Laos as a neutral and independent state.

The formula had to be discarded Sunday night when it was learned that the United States felt the wording was no longer acceptable. Qualified sources from other Western delegations said Rusk had given his colleagues the impression earlier that he accepted the proposal.

HOME WENT TOO FAR?

The United States view, it is understood, is that Home in writing the final draft with Gromyko went beyond the limits agreed to in previous talks with Rusk and Couve de Murville. The U.S. delegation withheld official comment, and Roger Tubby, assistant secretary of state for public affairs, was not available.

U.S. sources said that under this formula the Pathet Lao would attend as guests of Communist China, Prince Souanna Phouma's neutralists as guests of the Soviet Union and the Royal Laotian government as guests of either Britain or France.

PROTESTS KILL PLAN

This formula was dropped because of the protests of the two extremes in Laotian politics. The royal Laotian government delegation said it could not consider acceptance of the Pathet Lao until it had consulted its home government in Vientiane and until the head of the delegation, Leuan Insinsingmay, arrives Monday.

The Phumi Vongvichit, spokesman for the Pathet Lao, said the participation of the Neo Lao Hak Xat, the Pathet Lao's political arm, was "absolutely indispensable" to a solution of the Laotian problem. But, he added, "We will not go as observers."

The Pathet Lao, the spokesman added, would not allow either Prince Boun Oum, head of the royal Laotian government, or Gen. Phoumi Nosavan, minister of defense, to enter any future government of a neutral Laos. However, he conceded that some members of the present government would be acceptable. The prince and general, he added, were "agents of American imperialism."

Bus Burns, 14 Hurt in Race Blows

'Freedom Riders' Attacked Twice

was attacked as he sat in his closed automobile broadcasting an account of the violence.

He was on the air when his windows were smashed.

"I moved to the other side of the car, but they broke the windows on that side, too," Lake said.

One of the men swung a length of pipe in Lake's direction, but he ducked to one side. It glanced off the side of his face, but he was not hurt seriously.

No arrests were made.

The group—under the sponsorship of the Congress of Racial Equality—who sought to break the segregation barrier left Washington several days ago. They split into two groups in Atlanta and took separate buses—a Greyhound bus and a Trailways bus—into Alabama.

TIRES CUT

At Anniston, the bus station was closed, but a crowd of between 150 and 200 persons milled around outside the station.

Joseph Perkins Jr., identified as field secretary of the "Freedom Riders," told a reporter several windows in the bus station at Anniston had been broken. He said some of the bus tires apparently had been cut, "because I could hear the air hissing."

The Greyhound bus had to stop six miles from Anniston because of a flat tire. Several automobiles filled with white men trailed the bus.

USED FIRE DEVICE

They sought to enter the vehicle, but were prevented from doing so by E. M. Cowling, a state investigator who stood in the doorway while the bus driver attempted to change the tire.

The crowd milled around outside, Cowling said, before an incendiary device was thrown through a broken rear window of the bus.

The passengers did not leave the bus immediately, but smoke finally forced them to leave. The bus was destroyed by fire.

FBI agent Thomas J. Jenkins of Birmingham said his agents were making an inquiry into the bus burning to determine if there had been any violation of federal law. He declined to comment further.

The Trailways bus which later ran into difficulty at Birmingham had its first trouble at Anniston also.

Dr. Walter Bergman, 61, a former Michigan State University professor and a member of the CORE group, said a fight had broken out on the bus.

The Trailways station was closed, but Bergman said he got off, got sandwiches nearby and was getting back on the bus when a policeman came up.

"The driver said he wasn't going to move until the Negroes moved to the back of the bus," Bergman said. "At that time, about 10 white men attacked Charles Persons, a student at Morehouse University, Atlanta."

"And then James Peck stepped forward, then they turned on us. Peck was beaten about the face and got a deep cut on his scalp."

"Then they beat me and were kicking me. And then they threw the Negroes and others over me. There was no other violence until we got to Birmingham."

Bergman said three policemen had stood outside the bus at Anniston while this took place.

The bus continued to Birmingham where Peck, 46, a white man of New York City, was admitted to a hospital in fair condition. Peck is editor of the Cordator, a publication of CORE.

Riders Had No Trouble In Georgia

The burned and beaten bi-racial bus riders had no trouble at all during their trip through Georgia.

The group stopped at Augusta, Athens and then spent Saturday night in Atlanta, leaving Sunday for their trip through Alabama, which ended in violence just outside Anniston.

The group ate at Augusta, used all facilities at a rest stop in Athens, and found the restaurant closed for remodeling in Atlanta. They used the rest rooms here and got shoe shines, then left in cars to spend the night with friends at the Atlanta University Center.

James Palmer, leader of the group, said Saturday that the reception the group got in Georgia "makes me feel fine. I would be greatly pleased if we could get all the way to New Orleans without incident. I would be pleased and pleasantly surprised."

having an effect as a stabilizing factor among the wavering countries of free Asia."

The vice president, who flew here from the Philippines Sunday, left Taipei for Hong Kong to rest up briefly before going to Bangkok.

Earlier Sunday, the United States and the Philippines to "maintain effective strength" to defend against Communist encroachments in Southeast Asia. But the Filipinos indicated they were not satisfied with U.S. Far East policy.

A joint communique issued after Johnson's weekend visit here said the two allies had reached "complete agreement on the seriousness of the situation in Southeast Asia."

The communique was drafted following a one-hour closed conference Saturday between Johnson and Philippine President Carlos P. Garcia. But its release was held up until Sunday morning, after Johnson had flown off for Taipei.

The communique said Johnson presented Garcia with a letter from President John F. Kennedy, presumably containing Kennedy's personal assurances that the United States would stand by its Asian allies.

It said Johnson "gained a greater understanding of the Philippine stand on developments"

U.S. Car Parts Reaching Cuba

MIAMI (UPI) — Havana radio disclosed Sunday that spare parts for American-made cars are reaching shortage-plagued Cuba through European ports.

The United States last year embargoed such shipments to Cuba. However, government radio VOZ said the Spanish liner Covadonga on its arrival in Havana recently unloaded "great quantities of parts for Ford and Chevrolet automobiles."

2 Inmates Kill Guard, Flee Jail

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) —

Two men awaiting trial on murder charges escaped Sunday after killing a jail master who had taken over the duty so deputies could spend Mother's Day with their families.

The escapees shot David S. Robinson, 53, with a pistol apparently smuggled to them during the weekend. A search of the jail Friday in which a mine detector was used, yielded no trace of a weapon.

In the confusion shortly after the killing and escape officials reported the weapon might have been smuggled into Middlesex County jail by a man posing as a psychiatrist.

Later, investigators reported a lawyer for Norman Porter, 21, of Woburn, one of the fugitives, had obtained permission for a psychologist to visit Porter.

The lawyer had not arranged a specific time for the visit and when first questioned said he had not authorized any visits Sunday.

Porter, officials said, backed Maurice Maher, a guard, down a jail corridor at gunpoint, waving his hand inside the door of a room where Edgar W. Cook, 48, of Brookline, was talking with his court-appointed counsel.

Cook, warning the lawyer to stay where he was, joined Porter. Just then Robinson, who had sent the guard to return Porter to his cell appeared.

"What's going on, drop it, you're in enough trouble," said Robinson.

Cook, Maher said, snarled: "Shoot him. Let's get outta here."

The Big Money Problem II Governor Is Top Authority In North Carolina Finances

ing federal funds) during the next two years.

Pie charts would tell him precisely how much of the money was being spent in each area of government services.

This attention to detail as well as the big picture simply arms the North Carolina governor with the ammunition he needs to stall off any legislative revolt.

GLADSTONE QUOTED

In a state where spending is so closely studied, it is appropriate that Budget Officer Charles Holloman frequently quotes the great 19th Century British prime minister, William Gladstone:

"Budgets are not merely matters of arithmetic, but in a thousand ways go to the root of prosperity of individuals, and relations of classes, and the strength of kingdoms."

Holloman adds: "The budget of a government is its most powerful instrument of public policy. It is also its strongest means of clarifying responsibility."

To clarify responsibility, North Carolina begins the preparation of an appropriations bill—"building a budget," as Administration Department Director David Coltrane calls it—more than a year before the Legislature convenes in odd-numbered years.

Step by careful step, the figures are accumulated.

RESEARCH REQUIRED

Department heads first are required to research and plan their future operations in preparing an initial budget. Will North Carolina State College have an enrollment higher than the current year? It must decide what the outlook is for the next two years.

Then budget analysts—men who specialize in single state functions—sit down with department heads, whittling and sharpening the figures to get them ready for the governor's study.

This appears to be the key step in the North Carolina program. These budget analysts, most of them grayed career men, represent the governor in these early conferences.

Two are assigned to education and one to such fields as highways, hospitals, welfare and agriculture. They become almost as expert as department heads in financial matters and can consult on all problems.

North Carolina then begins a series of budget hearings, conducted by the governor and attended by chairmen of the Senate and House Committees on Appropriations and on Ways and Means, as well as two appointees of the governor.

Known as the Advisory Budget Commission, this group hears from all department heads and then begins an exhaustive three-week tour of the state institutions.

CHANCE TO ARGUE

If there are bad conditions at the mental institution, or if the agriculture department is lush with surplus funds, or there are inequities, the governor and his advisors face them where they exist.

Department heads have an opportunity to argue against the amounts planned by the governor and his advisors. If the advisors disagree with the amount the governor plans, that disagreement is reported in the bill which is sent to the Legislature.

But the times when this occur can be counted on one hand; such careful study shows up wastes or surpluses and the only other argument is over the degree to which a particular program should be supported.

ONLY ON POLICY

Thus, by the time the Legislature gets the bill, it is so well documented that the only argument revolves around policy, not petty politics.

But what about the Legislature itself? Surely, the representatives just in from Rocky Mount, or Hickory, or Concord can't possibly make head or tail of this massive two-year plan.

Yes, they can. To keep them informed, both the House and Senate divide their membership so that half of them work on the appropriations (spending) committees and the other half on the ways and means (taxing) committees.

POWERS LIMITED

These committees meet periodically to study the state's programs and decide whether there is any change which should be made.

After the Legislature approves the money bill, the governor still has limited powers. He cannot allot any other money except by vote of the State Council of department heads, but he usually has the facts to back up his requests.

His budget staff goes back to work on the other half of its job, checking on the spending plans of the departments. Sometimes they figure out ways to save $5,400 and sometimes ways to save $100.

CITES EXAMPLES

For example, Holloman cites the example of a college request for a $6,000 oven for ceramics, but investigation showed one just as serviceable could be bought for $600. Result: $5,400 saved.

Coltrane cites another. When a department head submitted a money request for a California convention trip, he was told to swap his first-class ticket for a tourist ticket. "I know you can save $100 on a tourist-class airplane ticket to California, because I did it," he said.

DEPARTMENTS MERGED

To keep a check on all spending, North Carolina has merged several departments like Georgia's into a single Department of Administration.

Under one roof and one set of directions, the state administrators purchasing, budgeting, property control, general services (house-keeping) and federal surplus goods distribution.

"The process is a little slow, but it is democratic," Coltrane said. "We have saved over $6 million per year on the appropriations."

Moon Plans Get Vital Boost With Soft-Landing Rocket Ship

CHINA LAKE, Calif. (AP)—The first rocket-powered vehicle to land gently — a feat vital for putting men and instruments on the moon and planets — was disclosed by the Navy Sunday.

The eight-foot-tall Soft Landing Vehicle — SLV — prototype recently demonstrated here looks like a bowling ball perched on a bar stool. A spokesman said future models will bear a closer resemblance to conventional rockets.

The SLV's four legs are slim fuel tanks. The ball at the top contains nitrogen under high pressure to force the fuel into the rocket engine slung between the legs.

What makes the SLV different from other rockets — and gives it the ability to hover and make soft landings — is the engine itself. It burns hypergolic fuels — liquids which ignite spontaneously when mixed in the thrust chamber — and throttles their exhaust like the accelerator in an automobile.

This permits the rocket to climb at variable speeds, hover at any heights and lower itself at whatever speed is desired. The engine can be started and stopped many times, the Navy said.

Most current rockets burn full blast until their fuel is exhausted.

The prototype SLV has no built-in guidance system. Later models, the Navy said, will be internally controlled like missiles with gyroscopic stabilizers and tiny computers.

The SLV has 1,300 pounds of thrust, more than ample for a soft landing in the near-vacuum around the moon.

In unmanned landings on the moon and planets, a large SLV would be the upper stage of a giant booster such as the multi-million-pound-thrust Nova. As the booster neared the moon, the SLV would separate and land tail first on its four shock-absorber legs.

The SLV was designed and tested by the naval ordnance test station here.

U.S. Shots to Reveal Behavior of Moon

By WALTER SULLIVAN
(Copyright 1961 by the New York Times Co.)

NEW YORK—The United States will shortly launch its first serious attempt to hit the moon. The target will be the Oceanus Procellarum, near the western edge of the moon, as seen from the earth.

Three similarly-instrumented vehicles are to be fired in this initial series, due to start in the second half of this year. Although payload capsules will carry retro-rockets to slow them down, the landings will still be hard.

The instrument package is being designed to withstand an impact, on a concrete surface, of about 200 miles per hour and still function afterwards.

A vidicon camera sending images to earth during the vehicle's final plunge, should provide the first close-up pictures of the moon's surface. This is the type of television-scanner carried by the Tiros weather satellites. While this will presumably be smashed it is hoped other equipment will survive the crash, including a seismometer, a radio system to send its readings to earth and batteries to keep it running for several weeks.

Plans for rocket exploration of the moon and planets were outlined in a report on the work of the jet propulsion laboratory of the California Institute of Technology. The laboratory is in charge of preparing payloads for the vehicles that are to make these journeys. The report, presented last June by Dr. Albert R. Hibbs of that laboratory, was brought up to date by him in a telephone interview.

RELEASE TODAY

His original presentation was to conference on interplanetary matter at Highland Park, Ill., under the auspices of the National Academy of Sciences. The academy will release the proceedings Monday.

It is hoped that the observation of "moonquakes" with seismometers will settle such questions as whether or not the moon is like a loaf of raisin bread. It has been suggested that there may be lumps of nickel-iron scattered through the moon's interior, like raisins. Seismic observations should also ultimately reveal the nature of the moon's interior and whether or not it has a heart of iron.

However, all these studies depend on the existence of moonquakes. What could produce such tremors in a body as dead as the moon appears to be? One cause could be tidal movements in the moon's rock because of the large monthly variation in the tug of the earth's gravity.

GREAT TIDES

The distance between the earth and moon varies by 11.5 per cent every 30 days, due to the eccentricity of the moon's orbit. This would be enough to produce ocean tides on the moon of 53 feet — if the moon had liquid oceans, which, of course, it does not. The so-called seas are thought by many to be made of a hardened lava-like material.

Likewise, according to calculations recently reported by Dr. Harold C. Urey of the University of California, if the moon's core is heated by radioactivity and cooled by conduction, this also should produce small quakes.

"INHERITED MESS"
Sen. Hubert Humphrey

Can't Lure Laos, Humphrey Asserts

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., declaring that the Kennedy administration inherited the "mess" in Laos, said Sunday the best that can be hoped for there is a neutral government that will lean to the left.

He said that in past years the United States, with its aid programs and military advisers in Laos, tried "to make a military ally out of a country that is not capable of being a military ally." Asked why the royal Laotian people don't fight, he replied:

"We have aligned ourselves with the rightest group, I mean the right of center, the very conservative group in Laos, and very frankly the popular support is not there."

Humphrey, assistant Senate Democratic leader and a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said the United States has done little to help Laos economically and the rebels "seem to be fighting for a cause." Also, he said, the rebels are "activated" by the Communists.

Kenya Farmers Warn of New, Teen Mau Mau

LONDON (AP) — Two young farmers from Kenya arrived in London Sunday and declared teenage terrorists — "a new generation of Mau Mau" — are threatening to overrun the East African colony.

Philip Bodley Scott and David Broach, both 35, said they had requested a meeting with Prime Minister Harold Macmillan this week to win "assurances for our lives and safety against the anti-white Mau Mau."

Mysterious Prowler Fires at Oldster's Home

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP)—A phantom prowler fired three shots into a woman's home Saturday midnight, wounding no one, half a mile from where he had terrorized a family four days earlier.

Wayne County Sheriff Jesse Hinson said he is convinced that the same man committed both acts and for no apparent reason.

"The pattern is the same, only it was a little more vicious this time with three shots being fired," the sheriff said. "We're doing all we can to try to apprehend him."

HOME OF NEGRO

The prowler's second target was the home of a Negro woman, Winnie Williams, 76, who was alone. Last Wednesday, he terrorized the white David Grimes family and fired a shotgun blast into a bedroom, inflicting minor wounds on three of seven children who had huddled together in a bed.

The Williams woman told officers she was awakened about 12:30 a.m. by the voice of a man who cried out: "I'm hungry. Fix me some food."

Sheriff Hinson said the woman told the prowler, "I'm not going to let a stranger in my house at this hour of the night." The man then replied, "If you don't get up and come out I'm going to shoot."

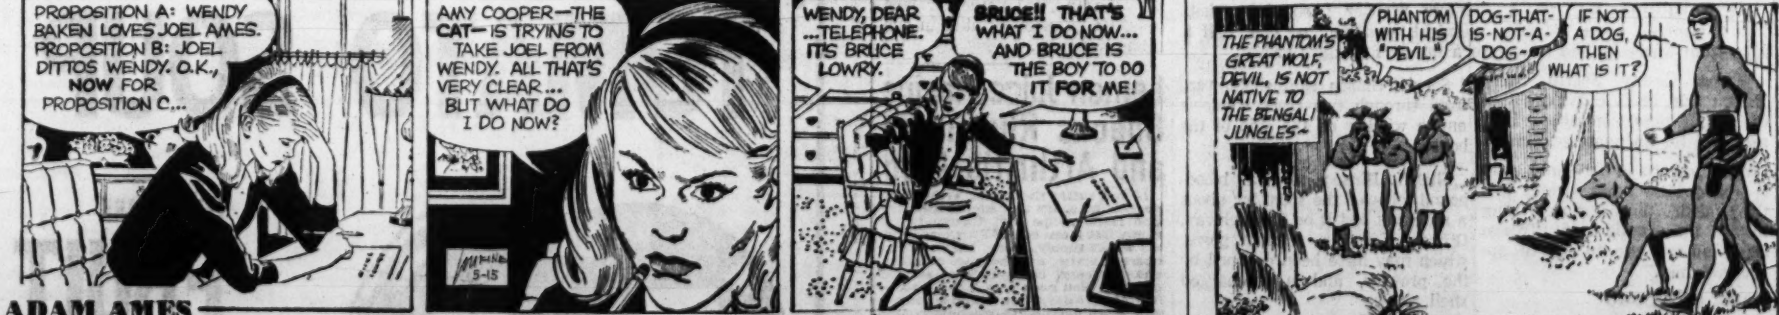

Sheriff Hinson said shots were fired through two front windows and a window on the side of the house.

Sheriff Hinson said a bloodhound followed the scent for about a mile, but lost it on the highway. Officers found a leather glove, which may have been dropped by the prowler, and a discharged shell.

Hinson added the shell appeared to have been freshly shot and was similar to a shell found in the yard of the Grimes home.

Georgia's New Court of Reigning Beauties

COLUMBUS — Glenda Brunson, in the center of this beautiful array, is the new Miss Georgia. Miss Brunson, from Savannah, got the crown late Saturday night and has a chance to compete for the Miss America title for 1961. Shown with the winner are the runnersup, left to right: Willou Copeland, Miss Golden Isles, tied for third runnerup; Virginia Hol-zendorf, Miss Waycross, second runnerup; Char-ron Pitts, Miss Thomas County, first runnerup, and Lynne Shirley, Miss Athens, tied for third runnerup.

Ware County's Hospital To Ask Bids on Annex

WAYCROSS — Bids will be requested next week on a million-dollar addition to Ware County Memorial Hospi-tal.

A d ministrator J. M. Weinzettel said final plans have been ap-proved by fed-eral and state hospital authori-ties for the three-story, 67-bed wing and remodeling of present facilities.

The present 110-bed capacity medical center, completed in 1956, has been overcrowded at nu-merous times in recent months.

Weinzettel said bids on the new addition, to be financed with fed-eral, state and local funds, will be returnable June 24 with construc-tion beginning in July.

Most of the new wing will be used for private rooms and an intensive patient care unit.

Remodeling and expansion of present laundry, maintenance and laboratory facilities also is planned.

M. M. Monroe is chairman of the governing board of the city-county hospital.

DOUGLASVILLE — Textile ma-chinery executive Robert V. Wal-ters has been elected president of the Douglas County Industrial Corp., a recently-formed firm to promote industry here.

Walters, also Chamber of Com-merce head, said the corporation has already sold $13,000 of some $30,000 worth of stock.

The firm will seek to bring in additional industries to Douglas-ville and Douglas County.

BRUNSWICK (AP)—Dr. Barbara Moore, Britain's tireless walker, hiked to Brunswick from Jackson-ville, Fla., Sunday, a 55-mile jaunt.

She planned to spend the night in a motel and resume her journey by foot to Boston at 4:45 a.m. Monday. The continental pe-destrian started her latest trek from Key West, Fla.

Complaining of the hot sun, Dr. Moore nevertheless stepped up her pace in order to reach Boston by June 2.

$150 Ring Stolen At Art Festival

A gold ring valued at between $150 and $200 was reported stolen Sunday from the art festival at Piedmont Park, police said.

The ring was reported missing from its display stand by its own-er, Harold Jeems Atwater of 2684 Brock Park Way, Doraville.

And Arthur Joel Stein of 3380 Castlegate Drive, NW, told police Sunday that someone took a nickel-plated .32-caliber pistol from his car Saturday night while he was attending the open-ing of the festival.

Stein said the pistol was valued at $150.

Hospital officials convinced the boy that his parents' worry would be greater than anger and he freely talked about the incident.

One Grady doctor, who is also a snake collector, was called to the hospital as a consultant and talked at length with Lawrence about their mutual hobby. The younger snake expert told his older colleague that he had found and captured 17 more snakes for his collection over the weekend.

But his collection shrunk by one Sunday. DeKalb police of-ficers shot the offending reptile, which measured one and a half inches in diameter.

5 Arrested, Drugs Seized In Raid Here

Vice Squad detectives broke up a "pot party" in southeast At-lanta early Sunday, reports showed. Five men were arrested.

Detectives B. G. Brown and S. T. Hinshaw said they got a tip the narcotics party was going on at 608 Hansel St. SE, and in-vestigated.

Brown said they found that the five occupants of the house "had been cooking pills and shooting themselves with syringe needles."

"We confiscated the remainder of the pills, one syringe, two needles and two cooking spoons," he related.

Charged with suspicion of pos-sessing and using narcotics were Albert Donnie Major, 25, of the Hansel Street address; William H. Allen, 33, of 588 Hill St. SE; James F. Maddox, 27, 1889 Pied-mont Cir. NE; Grady Lee Mc-Donald, 22, 650 Amal Dr. SW, Apt. 2, and William F. Poss, 22, 909 Hollywood Rd. NW, reports showed.

Bribe Trial Opening in Marietta

The trial of two Marietta city councilmen on charges of bribery and malpractice in office will get underway in Cobb Superior Court Monday.

Cobb Sol. Gen. Luther C. Hames Jr. said Sunday that the pair will be tried on 15 counts of mal-practice and bribery but added that no decision had yet been made on whether to try the pair separately or jointly.

He said the three bribery charges—two against Edward W. Chastain and one against Guy Powell—probably will be heard first.

Chastain and Powell are also charged with malpractice in of-fice—eight counts against Chas-tain and four against Powell. An-other Marietta city councilman, James W. (Bill) Lee, is also under two malpractice indict-ments. His case is on the court calendar but will not be tried immediately, Hames said.

These three, along with eight others, were indicted by the Feb-ruary term of the Cobb County Grand Jury two weeks ago. Hames said the trial of five for-mer pinball machine operators—Charles Batson, John H. Black, Howard Gentry, Jack Little and Luke Townsend—who were jointly indicted for bribery, and three others, also jointly indicted for bribery, will be tried later. The three others, said to be connected with Brand's Package Store, are Terrell Brand, Evert R. Shelton and Edward L. Chastain, cousin of the Marietta councilman.

$125,000 Damage

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Fire, set off by an explosion in a dry clean-ing-laundry plant here, burned into the early morning hours Sun-day, destroying the two-story building and causing an estimated $125,000 damage.

MOBILE, Ala. — Thad Tillotson, Atlanta right-hander, kept two streaks alive Sunday afternoon when he pitched the Crax to a 2-0 victory

Tillotson doled out three singles to the Mobile club and allowed just two men to reach third base. For six innings he was close to being invincible, allowing on one hit and just two base runners, the other getting life on base on balls.

Lanier, Griffin and BC Go After Murphy in AAA Today

Guthrie Faces Patterson

By PAUL ATKINSON

Constitution Staff Writer

THOMASTON — It'll be something like "Old Home Week" here Monday.

Three of the four teams that last season squabbled over the State AAA high school baseball championship, including defending winner Murphy of Atlanta, will gather for the tournament.

Only Lanier, replacing Moultrie as 1-AAA victor, is new, and Elton Wall's Poets were in two seasons back.

The pairings for the first round are these:
1 p.m.—Griffin vs. Lanier;
3:15 or thereabouts, Murphy vs. Benedictine.

If you'll recall, Murphy won the 1960 championship on the strong right arms of husky David Guthrie and slender Weldon Crook. Guthrie, who pitched back-to-back no-hitters last week to beat Sylvan in the 3-AAA playoff, likely will fire in the first game.

His mound opponent will be another right-hander, Larry Patterson.

In the second round Monday night, losers meet losers at 6:30; winners battle winners immediately following.

Murphy brings very much the same lineup into the tournament which won in '60. In the championship game last season, coach Julian Mock called on Roy Jarrett in center field; Wayne

Mock won't make many adjustments. Tate has been injured, so Jimmy Berry goes at shortstop, and Tommy Yates replaces Fisher in leftfield.

Battle was Mock's leading hitter with a .385 average. Jarrett came quickly and smacked out a .386 average, including a team-leading 15 runs-batted-in. Guthrie and Battle were second in RBI with 12 and 11.

Griffin got good hitting from outfielder-pitcher Cole and first baseman Mickey Clark. Griffin coach D. T. Smith figures Clark is "the best fielding first baseman in Georgia—bar none."

Stocky catcher Hank Lehwald led BC with a .415 mark, including three triples and a homer.

ATLANTA OPEN FIELD BEGINS PLAY TODAY

A field of 180 pros and amateurs begins teeing off at 8:30 Monday in the first round of the Atlanta Open at Druid Hills Country Club.

Players will be in threes upon arrival at the course. The second round of the 36-hole tournament is scheduled for Friday at Cherokee Country Club.

White Sox Split With KC, 6-1, 5-3

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago White Sox and Kansas City Athletics traded victories Sunday, each winning on two-run homers. The Sox grabbed the opener 6-1 behind the five-hit pitching of Bob Shaw and the A's salvaged the nightcap 5-3.

Joe Nuxhall, a National League castoff, earned his first American League triumph in the second game on the strength of Joe Pignatano's two-run homer in the sixth inning.

Nuxhall needed relief help from southpaw Jim Archer, who turned back a Sox threat in the eighth inning by getting Roy Sievers to hit into a doubleplay. The two

TIGERS DECLINE

It's LSU Or Nothing In Playoffs

If LSU decides against play in the NCAA Regional baseball tournament at Gastonia, N.C., June 1-3, there might be no Southeastern Conference representative at all.

Runnerup Auburn, which lost the SEC playoff to LSU in two games, has no desire whatsoever to take part in the tournament. Coach Erskine Russell made that clear Sunday.

"I hope LSU decides to play," he said. "As for us, we don't want to go. The champion of the Southeastern Conference should represent the league in NCAA regionals, and not the runnerup team."

"We don't feel like we deserved a chance to play. If LSU votes to turn down the trip, perhaps there should be no team at all from the SEC. They could just put a bye in the tournament and forfeit our place."

"Like I said, the champion—and no one else—should represent the conference in the regional. That's my firm belief."

"Of course, if we are ordered to play, then we might have to go, but we certainly feel we should not."

There is another personal reason two members of the Auburn squad do not want to play at Gastonia. Catcher Joe Wood and shortstop Benny Catchings have wedding dates on June 3.

Local Simmons Salesman Gives Tips on Silver Care

"One of the best resolutions you can make this spring is to assure lifetime wear for your valued silver pieces by having them restored or replated." This good advice comes from Paul Hinds, a Simmons sales representative. Constantly in demand for his knowledge of silver and other metal products, Mr. Hinds, who is blind, resides at 1279 McLendon Ave., N.E. He is assisted by his wife and by his ever-faithful Seeing-Eye dog, Gala.

Recognized as the South's oldest and largest silver and chrome plating firm — and one of the largest in the United States—Simmons Plating Works, Inc., is located in spacious, modern quarters at 395-409 Whitehall St., S.W.

Busy homemakers who take pride in keeping their living and dining rooms at the peak of elegance and charm should know that Simmons does all types of silverware repair service, such as furnishing handles, feet, hinges, metal borders, etc., when such things are missing. These expert silversmiths repair and refinish new ivory and ebony insulators, ivory knobs and handles for teapots, coffee pots and urns. They bring out the hidden beauty of andirons and fire sets. Brass beds are refinished and lacquered to preserve the finish. They install stainless steel blades in hollow-handle knives.

Routing Service Included in Benefits

More than 30 separate services and benefits are yours for the asking, when you are a member of AAA, each of which has been designed to give you comfort, convenience or pleasure.

Included is the most complete travel planning service available to motorists. Specially trained AAA travel counselors prepare your maps and other touring information for any trip within the U.S., Canada and Mexico.

A phase of this service is the "Triptik"—the AAA member's personalized routing showing mile by mile route and detailed sections of cities. Approved shopping places along the way are also listed.

Car stuck in a ditch? Flat tire? Out of gas? Won't start? Whatever your trouble, AAA's emergency road service comes to your rescue without charge. You just show your membership card and sign the service ticket!

Deluxe reservation service is a part of the master AAA plan. Headquarters will recommend AAA-inspected hotels, motels and vacation resorts, making any or all reservations the member wishes—a great convenience, representing a saving in time, money and trouble.

You receive valuable protection in the form of a Personal Accident Insurance policy, which pays indemnities for loss of life, limb or sight, has hospital and medical benefits and increases in value from year to year. Another important protection is provided in the form of a $5,000 bail bond, assuring the AAA member of prompt bail if arrested for any traffic violation.

AAA members are saved from considerable red tape, delay and inconvenience by having their AAA Motor Club secure their tags, operators' licenses, titles, etc. This is one of the club's most appreciated services.

Free notary service... up-to-the-minute road and weather reporting... emergency road service... regional and state maps

Three hundred and sixty-five days of satisfaction is the result of AAA's many services that mean smooth motoring in the U.S., Canada and Mexico. Phone the Georgia Motor Club at TR. 5-7171.

...four books and accommodations directories are just a few of the benefits.

For full information write or drop by the Georgia Motor Club at 1044 W. Peachtree, NW, or phone TR. 5-7171.

Fiberglas Insulation Keeps Homes Up to 15° Cooler

You Needn't Be a Cowpoke to Love Russell's Western Clothes

Gather 'round the pot-belly stove for some freshly brewed coffee... plunk a nickel in the nickel-odeon... sit down and rest a spell on a gen-u-ine cowhide love seat—if you don't want to look around, that is. Our guess is that men, women, children and horses will find Russell's Western store one of the most fascinating browsing places this side of the Alamo.

A roaring collection of wild west fun duds that are equally at home on the range, patio, beach, or la-de-da cocktail party have been corralled under one roof by Doris and Ross Russell. Everything is authentic Old Wild West, and everything in the store is for sale—including the bars that currently serve as counters.

Doris—who is known as "Mama," and who looks like Joan Crawford—and Ross Russell entered the retailing end of the Wild West business by accident. Ross is a long-time theatrical booker, who used to make frequent trips out West to sell talent. He usually took Mama along, and Mama usually had with her a staggering list of requests from friends who wanted to purchase items not found in this area. One of their sources of supply was Rex Bell, Clara Bow's husband, who currently is Lt. Governor of Nevada. It was he who suggested that they pioneer a Western store in Georgia and save themselves the trouble of transporting merchandise "over the border."

Ross maintains that there is a little of the oil-well owner cowpoke in all of us, and as evidence tells of local secretaries who pop into Russell's Western to purchase finely tailored shirts. Housewives (and house-husbands) who have no more truck with horses than the Saturday night shoot-up go for Western pants because they "really fit." They're built for a long round-up and don't sag in the knees (and elsewhere). Squaw and square dance dresses, ranging from about $9 to about $90 are as glittery as a Mexican silver mine and are by no means limited to the doe-see-doe set. Applied Here By Building Insulators

Why let a sweltering hot house rob you of restful sleep on summer nights and sap you of vitality during the dog days ahead? You can keep your whole house 8° to 15° cooler, sleep better, work better and entertain with greater comfort by having your home insulated with efficient Fiberglas.

Fiberglas blowing wool home insulation, applied by Building Insulators, is made of long smooth fibers of glass. These fibers trap countless millions of air pockets that form what has been described as an unequalled barrier against heat. The product is blown into the walls and ceilings of your home from the outside. There's no muss or fuss, no interruption to your daily routine.

If your home is air-conditioned—or will be soon—Fiberglas insulation can save you up to 38% on the cost to operate a unit. Building Insulators also applies Fiberglas to many homes that have been inadequately insulated, or where the insulation has settled.

Fiberglas is permanent. It will not settle or pack down to leave uninsulated spots in your walls or ceilings. In addition, because it's made of glass fibers, this insulation is moisture resistant, fire-safe, odorless, sanitary, and will retard wall-sweating.

"Money needlessly spent on heating and cooling fuels can more than pay for a complete Fiberglas insulation job in a short period of time," according to R. F. Nunn, manager of the Atlanta branch of Building Insulators. "In addition to heat protection in summer, the remarkable material serves as a heat retainer in winter; actually stops furnace heat from escaping so efficiently that you'll save up to 50% on fuel.

The "double blow" method is used in insulating the sidewalls of this house with Fiberglas blowing wool. Openings are made between each stud space near top and bottom to insure coverage. Year-round weather-conditioning is the result.

"For this reason, Fiberglas insulation turns out to be an investment rather than an expense. The investment starts paying dividends immediately and continues for the life of the structure."

Building Insulators, Inc., located at 1360 Seaboard Industrial Blvd., is the only factory-authorized applicator of Fiberglas blowing wool to the existing home market in this area. The company was founded in Shreveport, Louisiana 12 years ago. By putting into action the fact that insulation is only as good as the workmanship that goes into its application, Building Insulators has grown to be what is described as the largest corporation of its kind in the south.

Plan to beat the heat before hot weather really begins. You can begin to enjoy the many benefits of Fiberglas insulation long before you make the first payment.

3 Killed On Roads In Georgia

Three persons were killed during the weekend in Georgia highway accidents, while three young Savannah women lost their lives in South Carolina and a Shiloh woman was killed in Alabama.

Four-year-old Early Lee Law was killed Sunday when he ran into the path of an oncoming car in his home town city limits of Reynolds, in Taylor County, the State Patrol said.

ON A CURVE

Richard Gordon, 30, of Darien, died Sunday when his auto went out of control on a curve, left the road and struck a tree. The patrol said the accident occurred three miles east of Darien on Highway 99.

A 33-year-old Danville man, Oswald Pettis, was killed Saturday when he lost control of his car on a Wilkinson County road near Danville.

NURSE KILLED

Three student nurses from Savannah were killed in a two-car collision on Highway 321 about seven miles south of Chester, S.C., Saturday.

Officers said Ginny Smith and Linda Marie Palmer were found dead at the scene. Theresa Blanche Roughen, believed to have been the driver of one car, died in a hospital about an hour after the wreck. All were 18 years old.

Officers said 50-year-old Gladys W. Hardy of Shiloh was killed Saturday when her car collided with a dump truck near Fairfax, Alabama.

Wreck Kills 6 in Family In Carolina

GEORGETOWN, S.C. (AP) — Three members of one family and three of their relatives were killed near here late Saturday night when their small foreign car collided with another auto.

The victims were Lorenzo Squires, 23; his wife, Betty Jean Moore Squires, 20; their 8-month-old daughter, Betty Ann; Elmita Shelley Squires, 41; Effie Squires Johnson, 54, and Linda Faye Johnson, 11, all of Aynor.

The elder Mrs. Squires was Lorenzo Squires' mother. Mrs. Johnson was her sister-in-law and the mother of Linda Faye Johnson.

The driver of the other car, Roy Sessions, 25, of Georgetown was reported in critical condition in a local hospital.

Highway patrol Cpl. Charley McDonald reported Sessions apparently was driving at a high rate of speed along U.S. Highway 17 three miles south of here when his car crossed the center line and struck the Squires' auto head-on.

Frogs via Test Tube

HONG KONG (AP) — Red China claims its scientists have produced the world's first second-generation, test-tube tadpoles. The Red China News Agency said 800 tadpoles born in Peiping recently had parent frogs who had been created in test tubes.

7 Drown In State on Weekend

Pit Claims

In Cook County

Four children and a man drowned Sunday while swimming in a water-filled pit near Adel, bringing to seven the number of Georgians who drowned over the weekend.

Sheriff D. J. Connell of Cook County identified the children as Willie C. Palmer, 15; Lavina Palmer, 11; Mary Lee Palmer, 10; and Annie Pearl Brown, 10. The man was identified as Bob Talbert, 50. All were Negroes and lived in Sparks.

Sheriff Connell said Annie Pearl Brown had gotten into deep water and had gone under. Talbert and the other children tried to rescue her and in turn were drowned. The sheriff said water in the pit was 3 to 4 feet deep around the edges, and dropped to a depth of 10 feet a short distance out.

Talbert's wife, Zena Mae, 50, told the sheriff she also had tried to help but became exhausted and made her way to shore. She was taken to a hospital, suffering from shock.

Carl Eugene Banks, 23, of Lincolnton, drowned in Clark Hill Reservoir when the motorcycle he was riding ran off U.S. 378 between Lincolnton and McCormick, S. C. and plunged into the water.

John C. Stevens, 45, was drowned in a lake near White Plains while trying to grab a fishing line pulled from its mooring by a catfish. Sheriff L. L. Wyatt said.

Julian Hughes, 26, of Lafayette, was drowned while skin-diving in a lake near Chattanooga, Tenn.

COPTER TALK

Special Care Needed Driving on a 3-Lane

Sgt. L. A. Pendergrass flies over Atlanta daily in the police helicopter observing and reporting on traffic conditions.

By SGT. L. A. PENDERGRASS

Many drivers apparently are confused by overhead lane assignment lights on three-lane streets.

In the first place, three-lane streets are far from desirable. We've got them, though, and it's up to us to make the best possible use of them.

We have lane assignment lights on DeKalb Avenue, Stewart Avenue and Memorial Drive.

The overhead lights are always green in the curb lanes in either direction. That much is simple.

The center lane lights are green for incoming traffic during the morning rush hours and revert to green for outbound traffic during the afternoon rush hours.

Between rush hours, the center line lights flash amber.

An amber light is for passing and left turns only. A driver going in either direction may use the lane for this purpose provided it is clear at the moment.

Suppose you're headed in on DeKalb during the afternoon rush and desire to make a left turn. The center lane is red against you. You must not enter the center lane.

You must remain in the curb lane and make the turn across two lanes of opposing traffic.

More than 100 drivers have been arrested so far this year on charges of making improper turns at one such intersection, Memorial Drive and Moreland Avenue SE.

Accidents are stacking up on all three streets. Where accidents develop, you can expect cases to be made.

Carelessness can cost you time and money.

Atlantan Burned as Spray Flares

Ulysses Hull, 33, of 450 Glen Iris Drive, NE, was using a mixture of gasoline and mineral spirits to spray termites under his home Sunday morning.

Some of the spray came too near a hot water heater. Hull was treated at Grady Hospital for burns on his right wrist and left foot. Patrolmen H. N. Shelton and J. E. Hughes said.

Gunmen Rob Cafe Again, Get $10,000

NEW YORK (AP) — Two gunmen held up Luchow's restaurant, one of New York's best-known eating spots, early Sunday and got away with some $10,000. Bandits got $9,000 in a daylight holdup there six weeks ago.

The two Spanish-speaking hold-up men entered the restaurant at 2 a.m. when only the cashier, Horst Jazinski, and a night watchman were there.

"If you make a move we'll kill you," Jazinski said they told him.

Then one man held a flashlight in his eyes while the other scooped up several packages of bills.

Dance Class No Longer Crip, Festival Performer Claims

NO JOKING MATTER ANY MORE Modern Dancer Katherine Litz

By JEAN ROONEY
Modern dance is more than a big laugh to college co-eds these days.

"They are taking it seriously," said Katherine Litz of New York, modern dancer to appear in Atlanta's Arts Festival Monday night at Piedmont Park.

The small visitor talks frankly about her art's beginnings a couple of decades back, when co-eds signed up for modern or interpretive dance as a big joke.

BA DEGREE

Now the University of Illinois gives a Bachelor of Arts degree in dance, she pointed out.

A dance major in college these days no longer just learns to dance. She does research in the arts, prepares term papers and even practice teaches, the visitor says.

"She not only learns choreography but staging, lighting and costumes," the big-eyed, auburn-haired dancer said.

GOOD CAREER

Her field is fast becoming a good career for the college graduate, she said.

"It's easy to place our girls as dance teachers — either in colleges or in high schools. Interest in dance is growing," Miss Litz said. She is currently a resident dance teacher at the University of Illinois.

Modern dance had a bad name in the beginning, 15 or 20 years ago, she admitted.

"We had bad teachers. No wonder girls took it as a crip course," she said.

Now the dance has moved from the physical education field into the arts.

"It's like painting and music

Jackie Style Is Egg-Nest

AURAY, France (WNS) — Mme. Genevieve Duvaux was proud of her big Jacqueline Kennedy hair-do until she went into the garden to water the flowers. She felt something hit her head, and when she investigated, discovered that a cuckoo had left an egg there.

and the theater," she reminded, "purely an art."

LIKE PAINTING

She explained her medium as a form of expression like painting.

The dancer has an idea to convey, something exciting about people or an event.

Miss Litz, originally from Denver, studied with Martha Graham, Doris Humphrey and Charles Weidman, pioneers in the field.

"But every dancer develops his own style. Not like ballet, we are not as restricted by exact techniques," she explained.

Young people of all ages need modern dance training, she believes.

When children begin dancing around the house, they should be put in a dancing teacher's hands.

For the adolescent, modern dance is a wonderful antidote to awkwardness and excess energy.

The improvisation and letting themselves go of modern dance helps their mental health, she believes.

As for her own technique, after 20 years in the field, New York Times critic wrote: "Her physical technique is tremendous and constantly inventive, using every part of the body freely and creatively."

Miss Litz will dance three of her original numbers Monday (at 8 p.m.): Daughter of Virtue, The Fall of the Leaf and the Glyph. "Daughter" is danced to a Rachmaninoff score.

Doris Lockerman Southern Theater Opens in Newnan

A visionary lady in Newnan, sick and weary at 82, will within a few weeks see a portion of her life-long dream come true.

The Southern Theater Festival will open for its first season of drama by Southern writers, about 800 themes in the Hettie Jane Dunaway Gardens. Its premiere production, a full presentation of "John Brown's Body" with chorus, dancers and off-Broadway stars has been scheduled for June 12.

"And think," Mrs. Wayne T. Sewell told Ed Danus, managing director of Newnan's new Southern Theater Festival, "I have been praying every night that the gardens would not go back to red clay."

For 40 years, the Hettie Dunaway Gardens have been the artistic passion of Mrs. Sewell's life. She was once a Chautauqua actress. She conceived the idea of a beautiful native garden to be established on the gently rolling farmland owned by her husband, to be used as the center of an art colony in the South.

The result has been a panorama as different from the usual lush azalea garden as if they were set in different countries. Mrs. Sewell met her problem of limited water with the ingenuity of the oriental gardener, using rocks, plants and ground coverings that would thrive in those austere conditions. She created 22 terraces leading down to a creek, designed pools, falls, little bridges, gardening from a terrace to terrace. People who pride themselves on knowledge of Japanese gardening say the Dunaway gardens suggest the Ikabana principle as correctly as if she had been a disciple of the Japanese art.

Twice before dance and theatrical companies have undertaken festivals at the Dunaway Gardens and twice they have failed. Wars and depressions have been the nemesis of Mrs. Sewell's aspirations.

Now, within an easy drive of Metropolitan Atlanta's restless million, Mr. Danus's group will undertake their own innovation in theater. A total of six plays, a new one each fortnight, will be presented before the season closes on Labor Day. Dan Kennedy, gifted son of Lila Kennedy, Southern director of American National Theater Academy, will do the projected scenery.

The Dunaway Gardens have two theaters. One a splendid amphitheater on the hillside, crouched under tall cedars, named for Vivian Leigh, will seat 1,000 persons under the stars.

The second, the Patchwork Barn Theater ("Life is made of patches, gray and gay... we are doing patchwork every day"), will provide covered stage and seating of 300, in case of rain.

"We have our own reversible raincoat," says Mr. Danus with an eye to the weather. "The play will go on."

There is also a small restaurant of quaint charm, now called the Tea House of the August Moon by its friends. Food service is by reservation only.

Among other hopes, Mr. Danus feels his group will have a mission to present aspects of Southern life not now touched by the Tennessee Williams set. Included among these will be two Civil War spectaculars especially appropriate for this Centennial year.

With only the smallest gift of good luck, Mrs. Sewell will see a vigorous new beginning in her beloved Hettie Jane Dunaway Gardens in Newnan.

Nurses Find New Medical Discovery Calms Pre-Period Tension, Nerves Relieves Menstrual Cramps, Pain

Helps Ease Women Into Their Periods By Releasing Pressure On Sensitive Female Tissues

New York, N. Y. (Special)—Medical science has developed an astonishing new formula that now does both: calms pre-period tension and nervousness—helps relieve menstrual cramps and pain. In tests conducted by hundreds of nurses on themselves, many reported nervousness and irritability were calmed. Abdominal bloating, soreness of breasts and fatigue were reduced. Cramps, backache, depression and headache were relieved. So effective is this new medical discovery that Registered Nurses make such statements as: "A great help both before and during menstruation." "Relieves all symptoms." "More effective than other preparations taken—including prescription drugs." All this without narcotics or tranquilizers, and without changing the regularity of the period in any way. Nurses confirm in this test that women actually ease through more comfortable periods.

A secret of this new discovery (called Trender® Tablets) is the way it releases excess water fluids that doctors know build up in the days before the period. This build-up causes bloating, soreness, pressure on sensitive female tissues. Trender Tablets work by releasing the excess water fluids so pressure in tissues is relieved and by relieving cramps and pain.

The ingredients in Trender Tablets are completely safe and effective taken as directed. Trender Tablets are available at all drug counters without prescription.

Male Gardeners Make Grade, Taken Into Tulip Club Ranks

By YOLANDE GWIN

There are four brave men in town who are going to lunch with forty women! Breaking this down that would mean that there will be ten women for every man, which sounds somewhat like a census report of the male situation in most parts of the nation.

But no. These men are married and they are the first of their sex to be made honorary members of the Atlanta Tulip Club, which up until now has been strictly for the girls. They are J. J. Nicholson, J. Wen Lundeen, Sam Belsinger and Ray Olds.

Every month—that is, from September to May—the girls meet and talk about tulip culture, plan shows—including the annual Tulip Festival at Hurt Park, have a variety of speakers and raise money to buy linens for the Our Lady of Perpetual Help Free Cancer Home.

ANNUAL LUNCHEON

On Tuesday of this week the annual luncheon takes place at the East Lake Country Club. One of the things on the program will be the election of new officers. Mrs. J. Wen Lundeen, now president, will turn over the reins to her daughter, Mrs. James Finch.

Mrs. J. J. Nicholson, Atlanta's Tulip Lady will be on hand.

This brings up an interesting feature. Recently in this column there was a story about Mrs. Reid Bryson, who thought she had a miracle flower in her yard. It was a two headed yellow tulip which grew in her garden along with the single headed ones.

BIT OF LIGHT

Mrs. Nicholson was among the first to shed a bit of light on what was thought to be a horticultural marvel.

"I am sure this is the 'Golden Harvest' variety which often has two heads and sometimes three. There is also a multi-flowering variety which always has several blooms but is not too well known here."

Well, it seems that there are lots of two headed tulips competing with the one Mrs. Bryson found in her garden.

Mrs. C. J. Davis of Route 4 in Lawrenceville called and said:

"I have three heads! I bought my bulbs at a super-market here in Lawrenceville and one stalk came up with three heads and all were yellow!"

Mrs. C. C. Lowe of Route 1, College Park, had six stems and 12 blooms. "My mother, Mrs. F. H. Daum, was in Greenwood, S.C., and bought me some bulbs. When she gave them to me she said they were the bouquet variety. But you can imagine my surprise when they bloomed just like a bouquet. They were all yellow and just beautiful," she wrote.

RARE INDEED!

From Winder came the following note from Mrs. Jack Bennett:

"I've had several bulbs that for years have had three heads. I thought nothing of it at the time but now I realize that they are rare indeed. You can really see now that three heads are better than one. Mine are all yellow."

Can You Tie This?

Any Man Can Master Costume Art!

By RAYMONDE ALEXANDER
Constitution Fashion Editor

BEGINNING OF A BOW
One End Is One Inch Longer

SECOND STEP IS LOOP
Long End Loops Around Short End

Men are sensitive creatures when the subject of their ties reaches the conversation point. After all it's their one sure way of putting a little dash into their wardrobes if they are on the conservative side—and have you met many men who are not.

Some you know resist any change in shape, pattern, or color. These are the fellows who went down fighting the narrow, slim look that arrived some years ago in four-in-hand ties.

SAW RED

These are the same guys who saw red or blue every time white or light colorings were mentioned for summer neckwear. In fact, to suggest any change in ties except the same old ties they "grew up" with as fashionable made them think you were trying to slash their throats with a knife rather than circle them with ties.

Then there are guys who don't even remember what their ties look like. Kindly wives stock their racks for them and these men pull from them day after day without much thought.

GROWN BOYS

Some wives are the ultimate in looking after these grown boys. They go so far as to "match up" their men's daily assemblage while he reads the morning news.

And still another group of gentlemen have their own tastes and like to express them. These are the men who are conscious of their appearance and proud of it. They make a point of knowing the ins and outs of neckwear. They can be expected to be interestingly dressed regardless of the odds.

FOUR-IN-HAND

But not all men like four-in-hand ties. Some prefer bow styles. It may be that these best suit the contour of their faces. It may be that the bow is the easiest to keep out of the luncheon soup.

Now the real dyed-in-the-wool bow tie fancier is a stickler for tying his own bow.

NOT TOO FUSY

But the not too fussy in this bow tie preferred group take the easy way out and wear the clip-on bows. Patterns, colors, and fabrics are just as handsome in the ready-tied and the bow always "sits" right. Besides it is quicker to clip on rather than tie. Sometimes ready-tied bows are favored because men insist they just don't know how to tie a bow.

For those who prefer bows and would like to be able to tie their own, master the art. It is really very simple—anyone that can tie a shoe string can tie a bow tie. It's the very same technique and this you learned before going to the first grade of school.

THE TECHNIQUE

First, slip the tie under the collar. Adjust one end one inch longer than the other.

Second, loop the long end around the short end. Fold the short end in half. Next hold the folded short end and draw the long end around and through the loop. Then pull the loops to even ends and tighten. The result is a perfectly tied bow tie.

Easy, wasn't it?

During the Merry Month of May Why Not Bake This Basket Cake?

By PATRICIA DEATON
Constitution Food Editor

2 egg whites

Mix and sift cake flour, sugar, salt and baking powder. Make a well and add in order: corn oil, egg yolks, water and flavorings. Beat until smooth. Add cream of tartar to egg whites. Beat until whites form very stiff peaks. Gently fold first mixture into egg whites until well blended. Pour batter into 2 ungreased 8-inch layer pans. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 25 minutes or until cake springs back when touched lightly with finger. Invert pans on 2 custard cups so that cake hangs free. Let stand until thoroughly cool. To remove from pan, loosen with spatula. Put together with Basket Cake Frosting as directed below.

The chiffon cake is baked in two layers, frosted and decorated with a basket weave pattern. The top is covered with May flowers hand sculptured out of uncooked fondant.

Needless to say, the artistic cake will create a certain festive air during a May dinner or party. And it just might become a tradition with your family.

MAY BASKET CAKE

Bake two 8-inch layers following recipe below; cool. Put 2 layers together with frosting between. Cut out from center of top layer a round about 1/2 inch deep and about 2 inches in from edge. Frost entire cake except for center of top layer. Fill this center with coconut which has been tinted light green with vegetable food coloring. Place, on top of coconut, colored candy flowers and leaves. These flowers and leaves can be made from fondant colored, pink, blue, yellow and green, or with birthday cake flowers and leaves which you can buy.

Make basket handle with stiffly starched, 1-inch wide ribbon of a color to match frosting.

BASKET CAKE

1 1/2 cups sifted cake flour
3/4 cup sugar
3/4 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 cup corn oil
2 egg yolks
3/4 cup water (1/4 cup plus 2 teaspoons)
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
1 teaspoon orange extract
1/4 teaspoon cream of tartar

Let margarine stand in a bowl until soft. Cream thoroughly. Gradually add 1 1/2 cups sugar, beating after each addition. Add egg and beat well. Add remaining sugar gradually and continue beating until mixture is light and fluffy. Makes about 2 1/2 cups frosting.

NO COOK FONDANT

1/2 cup soft margarine or butter
1/2 cup light corn syrup
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
4 1/2 cups (1 pound) sifted confectioners' sugar

Blend margarine or butter, corn syrup, salt and vanilla in a large mixing bowl. Add confectioners' sugar all at once. Mix with a spoon and then with hands. Turn onto a board; knead until mixture is well blended and smooth. Store in a cool place. Makes about 1 1/2 pounds fondant. Color, flavor, and shape to make desired candy fondant flowers. Flavor and shape remaining fondant as desired.

DEAR RUNNER:

Men's passes atlasses aren't slowed down by glasses.

DEAR GEORGE:

Is there any sure-fire way to keep husbands from forgetting to mail letters? Mine carries the gas bill around until they threaten to turn it off, forgets to mail personal letters, even walked around with our income tax return in his pocket until we passed the deadline.

I've done everything but pin them on his coat, and I would do that if he would let me. Do other wives have this trouble?

BILLIE B.

DEAR BILLIE:

I understand this is quite a common complaint and, as a matter of fact, have jotted down some statistics which I have right here in my coat pocket and—oops! There's my light bill which should have gone out the tenth.

This is one problem we better turn over to readers: Wives, do you have any solution? Let us hear from you.

Barbecue Highlights Month For Terrace Club Members

By KATHRYN GRAYBURN

Constitution Society Editor

THE TERRACE CLUB on Peachtree is the lively rendezvous of a select group of single adults, who are enjoying the new dining facilities at the club.

Appetizers, sandwich plates, desserts and beverages are now being served, with Saturday luncheons as an added attraction.

The Washboard Band from Sea Island was back for Friday's dance. Sam Wilhoit's Combo played for the Saturday dance.

Members especially enjoy the Happy Hour around the new piano bar every Wednesday and Friday.

Highlight of the month for Terrace Club members will be a barbecue May 28 at Lake Lanier.

Tuesday Tea Dance

THE SORTA 40 Band will play for the annual tea dance to be given Tuesday at the Piedmont Driving Club by the Woman's Auxiliary of Piedmont Hospital. The party will follow the organization's annual meeting and election of officers, and will be a merry affair.

Mrs. Stuart Witham III is reservations chairman.

Hope, Not Profits Push Stocks Up

By JACK LEPLER

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market's advance in the first quarter was based more on hope than on actual corporate earnings, according to one investment advisory service.

The evaluation is based by Spear & Staff, Inc., on its study of sales and earnings in 15 key industries.

Only five of the industry groups were able to show higher income in the first three months of 1961 than in the comparable 1960 period.

These were petroleum, up 15.69 per cent; office equipment, 13.49 per cent; tobacco, 10.85 per cent; machinery, 2.91 per cent, and cosmetics-toiletries, 1.07 per cent.

The poorer performers included steel and iron, off 70.23 per cent; automobiles, 54.05 per cent; auto accessories, 53.23 per cent, and construction-building materials, 36.9 per cent.

"We believe the first quarter will prove to have been the worst for most companies with improvement coming in successive quarters," Spear said.

"Current demand for steels, electricals and machine tools may mark a renewal of interest in these laggards."

Resting Period

The present quiet reaction on the market is generally being viewed as a resting period preparatory to a further assault on the all-time highs but the longer it lasts the more difficult the assault will become, comments Winslow, Cohn & Stetson.

"We are inclined to be patient but watchful, still hopeful of new highs before too long, but prepared for a fairly sharp reaction if the 670 level on the Dow Jones Industrial average is broken," the brokerage firm says.

"In a superheated speculative environment like the present, cooling off periods must be viewed with distinct suspicion."

"This still looks like a good time to buy the better acting groups and special situations, but discretion would seem to call for a little more discrimination than has been necessary since the beginning of the year."

It finds signs of progressive economic recovery in climbing steel production, expanded outstanding installment credit, increasing new orders for machine tools, and a sharp April gain in the proportion of companies reporting a rising trend in output.

"The business prospect is clear: Further improvement ahead," Value Line says. "Even so, the stock market in general is overpriced."

"Sooner or later, prices will conform to value as determined by earnings and dividends, wiping out the overvaluation of the past six years."

Mushrooming Trend

The Value Line Investment Survey says a rising trend in business activity, gaining momentum as the year advances, seems assured for the balance of 1961 and probably for a good part of 1962.

It finds signs of progressive economic recovery in climbing steel production, expanded outstanding installment credit, increasing new orders for machine tools, and a sharp April gain in the proportion of companies reporting a rising trend in output.

"The business prospect is clear: Further improvement ahead," Value Line says. "Even so, the stock market in general is overpriced."

"Sooner or later, prices will conform to value as determined by earnings and dividends, wiping out the overvaluation of the past six years."

Steel Gains Predicted at 19 Per Cent

CLEVELAND (AP)—Steel magazine reported Sunday that steel consumption is rebounding.

The metalworking weekly predicted nearly 19 per cent more finished steel is expected to be consumed this quarter than in the first quarter — 17.9 million tons, compared with 15.1 million tons.

"Now that the automotive industry has come back into the buying picture," Steel said, "a pickup can be seen across the board. So far, the mills have had no trouble keeping most of their delivery promises. The exceptions are galvanized plates and tin plate. Some producers are sold out of those products for two months."

Steel estimates the industry is operating at 70 per cent of capacity. Ingot production reached the two-million mark last week for the first time in nearly a year. Output this week is expected to exceed that mark.

Steelmakers are likely to rebuild their stocks to some extent during the second and third quarters, the publication said.

"Steelmakers do not yet see the start of an inventory buildup by customers," Steel said, "but with increased buying, more consumers are beginning to take a close look at their stocks and possible delivery schedules."

Carelessness In Smoking Tops in Fires

Careless smoking caused the most known fires in Atlanta in 1960—430—and the $245,181 loss was second only to the 150 fires of unknown origin with a loss of $1,064,065.

That was the verdict of the 1960 report of the Fire Department released by Chief C. H. Hildebrand Jr. Sunday.

Losses for 1960 totaled $2,068,029, $1,288,557 less than the $3,356,586 recorded in 1959.

The department answered 7,633 alarms, of which 1,735 were false. This compares to 6,920 alarms in 1959 with 1,234 false. Listed with the false alarms also are "honest mistakes and accidents."

In 1960 28 adults were arrested in connection with incendiary fires and 27 were convicted. Seventeen juveniles were arrested and all 17 were committed. The arson division of the fire prevention bureau investigated 451 fires, of which 112 were regarded as incendiary; 172 accidental; 127 suspicious, and 40 undetermined.

A marked reduction in the number of residential fires, from 1,503 in 1959 to 1,206 in 1960, is attributed by Chief Hildebrand largely to the home inspection program conducted in neighborhoods near the various fire stations.

The program lasted from April 1 through Oct. 15. It will be repeated this year under present plans. The department made 25,879 inspections of all types.

The department employs 768 persons of whom 702 are in the fire-fighting business. Costs for operation, maintenance and supplies were $4,028,718 last year.

Chief Hildebrand thanked the public, the mayor, Board of Aldermen and all the others who helped "write an exceedingly successful year in the gallant history of our fire-fighting apparatus."

2 4 Pass 2 4 Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—A raise to three spades is clearly indicated. Up to this point you have promised no values whatsoever, and yet you have distinct support for partner who has shown a very fine hand by doubling first and then bidding at the level of two later.

Q. 6—As South you hold:

AKK2 VKQ103 AKJ5 AKQ72

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South

1 4 Pass ?

What do you bid?

A.—One heart, with two hearts as a very close second choice. This may come as a slight disappointment to those who have heeded my earlier advice to make direct bids whenever possible. A three trump bid is, therefore, tempting. The top limit of a three no trump bid is 18 points. On this hand, however, we have an additional ten and the added factor that the queen of clubs, in view of partner's bid, is apt to be worth more than the two points normally assigned to it. While our preference has been for an approach bid, we would not look down our noses at anyone who chose a three no trump bid.

Q. 7—Both vulnerable, and as South you hold:

AJ72 VAJ94 AKQ93 45

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South

Pass 1 4 ?

What do you bid?

A.—We recommend a trap pass, as calculated to produce the best results in the long run. A take-out double might result in an awkward situation if partner responds two clubs.

Q. 8—As South you hold:

AK62 VKJ93 QJ98 4109

The bidding has proceeded:

East South West North

2 4 Pass 2 NT Pass

3 4 Pass 3 4 Pass

4 4 Pass Pass Pass

What is your opening lead?

A.—Without straining the imagination, one can visualize a short heart suit in dummy and, in order to impair the ruffing value of that otherwise feeble dummy, it is essential that the ace of spades be led, to be followed immediately by another spade.

As Poor Workers

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet labor newspaper Trud reported Sunday that three "habitual non-workers and drunkards" have been sentenced to forced labor under the new "anti-parasite" law.

The paper said the Novosibirsk (Siberia) Peoples' Court sentenced a woman to five years and two men to four and three years hard labor.

RHYME A DAY

By OLLIE REEVES

"Regardless of income, most taxpayers complain about discrimination, yet much study has been given to a tax system that would equalize the burden."—Financial column quote.

"Lives of great men all remind us" . . . They have troubles, and to spare . . . Which has more or less resigned us . . . To the small ones we must bear . . . Though the poor may live in squalor . . . There is also evidence . . . When the rich man gets a dollar . . . He is taxed for 90 cents.

His whole scheme is shot to pieces . . . When the income that he gets . . . From his stocks and bonds and leases . . . Can't be used to pay his debts . . . So his creditors pursue him . . . And he "takes it on the lam" . . . If he doesn't take what's due him . . . And give all to Uncle Sam.

When they wrote the Declaration . . . There's one line they overlooked . . . Placing limits on taxation . . . So the rich would not be hooked . . . And the millionaire who wishes . . . For relief, quite often wails . . . "They don't hurt the little fishes . . . But they're murdering the whales."

Lives of millionaires remind us . . . We are never in a sweat . . . For, if tax collectors find us . . . Mighty little they will get . . . As it is, no one relaxes . . . Middle classes, poor or rich . . . For they've equalized the taxes . . . So you can't tell who from which.

Sulphur Ointment Is Cure for Scabies

Dear Dr. Molner: Scabies is the most embarrassing disease, and I do hope there is a cure.

Yes, there's a cure. Scabies is caused by a tiny mite about one-fifth of an inch long.

It is true these mites are more prevalent among persons who do not bother to keep clean — but there's no reason why a perfectly clean person may not, on occasion, acquire one.

At first there is little if any itching, and hence scabies can get started without any warning.

The invading mite burrows into the skin, and in its tiny tunnel it lays eggs. The eggs hatch, the new generation of mites digs out to the surface, then repeats the process.

The severe itching occurs when, or if, the patient develops an allergy to the mites.

The cure? Getting rid of every last mite. Several medications are in use, but the principal one remains an ointment containing sulphur. Sulphur is also used in soaps and lotions. It is a messy and smelly treatment but effective.

The usual schedule is to use the medication for three consecutive days, then take a very thorough bath and along with it a complete change of bedding and clothing.

(Dry cleaning, as well as ordinary washing and ironing, will destroy any of the mites in the clothing or linens.)

There are at least two very good reasons for having a physician supervise the treatment. One is to be certain the sulphur or other medication is applied in the most effective manner.

The other is that some persons are sensitive to the sulphur mixtures. In such cases obviously there should be no delay in stopping that treatment and substituting another that won't be irritating. The scabies itch is annoying enough without compounding the trouble with an additional itch.

Is there such a disease as chronic brucellosis?—Mrs. H. F.

It is usual, rather than unusual, for brucellosis (or undulant fever) to be chronic, and the treatment is difficult. A continuing nuisance.

Dr. Molner regrets he is unable to answer individual letters. He uses readers' questions in his column when possible.

Patrollers' 'Dixie' Melts Cabmen

By MARJORY RUTHERFORD

Constitution Staff Writer

NEW YORK—"Well, Decatur has one skyscraper." A loyal 12-year-old DeKalb County Safety Patrol member thus reminded a bus load of big-eyed boys and girls taking in the sights of New York City Sunday. Then he went back to gawking at the near-topless towers of Manhattan.

Some 1,100 pupils from Decatur and DeKalb schools climaxed a thrill-packed long weekend of tripping and touring with a night and day in New York.

ONLY UNIT IN U.S. The group is the only Safety Patrol unit in the nation to come on from Washington, D.C., to the "Big City," according to S. A. (Sam) Moss, assistant superintendent of DeKalb schools.

"We've done this for several years," Moss reported. "It's a wonderful educational experience for our youngsters — broadens their horizons."

Horizon-pushing patrollers Saturday were in the nation's Capital, where more than 30,000 boys and girls from 36 states, marching in the Silver Jubilee Safety Patrol parade, were saluted as "30,000 reasons why the Communists won't take over this country."

SING 'DIXIE' The youngsters souvenir shopped, snapped pictures with their cameras and drew smiles even from Manhattan's notoriously bad-tempered taxi drivers when they sang "Dixie" and gave a restrained rebel yell or two.

Greg Polk, seventh-grader from Forrest Hills School, "couldn't decide" whether Washington or New York thrilled him most. But the two Jima shrine at Arlington Cemetery is one of the things that stood out. He'll have a lot to tell 9-year-old sister Nancy, and like all the young trippers he's bringing home a surprise gift for his mother, Mrs. G. L. Pope Junior.

PRaised BY HOTEL Tina Rappa, 13, of 2722 McAfee Road, Decatur, "didn't miss Mother's Day." Her mom, Mrs. Marie Rappa, who helps direct traffic at Toney School, was along on the trip too.

DeKalb youngsters, largest single youth group to ever stay at the Manhattan Hotel, were praised by its manager as "the best-behaved we've ever had."

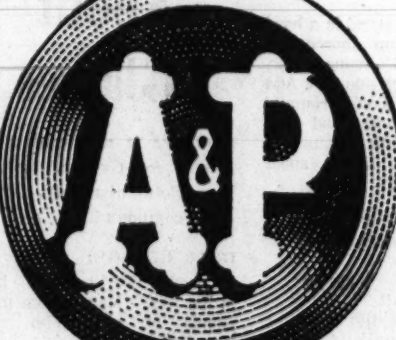

And J. R. Reese, Southern Railway System traffic passenger agent, declared, "It's a pleasure to travel with these young folks."

White-capped chefs and waiters bowed their heads and recited the Lord's Prayer along

Each child received a dollar to spend in the Automat—and to some, that was a sight in itself.

HOMEWARD BOUND Sunburned, footsore, weary, sleepy and happy, boys and girls boarded two special trains for the return home Sunday night. The trippers are due to reach Atlanta early Monday afternoon.

How you can help your boy if he says—
I want to be a newspaperman.

Help him the same way you would if he set his sights on any other profession . . . medicine or law or teaching. First, make sure he knows exactly what he's headed for. Then, show him the best road to get there.

Newspaper work naturally attracts young people. It offers prestige, excitement, good pay, the opportunity for rapid advancement—and, most important, the satisfaction of making a real contribution to society. But, in return, it requires dedication, hard work, civic responsibility and basic integrity.

If your boy understands the responsibilities (as well as the rewards) of newspaper life, he's ready to prepare for it. The time for him to start is right now—while he's still in high school.

Newspaper work is divided into five major fields. Each requires special skills and special training for a successful career in it:

NEWS REPORTING AND EDITORIAL WRITING—often considered the basics of newspaper work: gathering, reporting, editing or analyzing the news . . . or commenting on it for the newspaper's opinion pages. These tasks require curiosity, perseverance, the ability to write clearly. They call for training in a journalism school or department, or a broad liberal-arts college education.

BUSINESS—under the business department come accounting and finance, and frequently personnel work and sales promotion. Useful here are the ability to plan ahead, to get along with people, good business judgment and a knowledge of bookkeeping and office management. Some business department positions call for a college degree in accounting or management. In the case of sales promotion, a man needs ability in creative copywriting or art.

ADVERTISING—the department that furnishes the newspaper with most of its revenue. People who sell advertising successfully often have a broad educational background in business, marketing, accounting and psychology. Above all, they enjoy meeting and talking with people, following through on sales problems and presenting new advertising ideas imaginatively.

CIRCULATION—Training and supervising newspaper boys and men who sell and distribute newspapers is the heart of circulation management. Sales training, general business experience and a broad education (including psychology and marketing courses) are helpful here.

PRODUCTION—the departments that turn words, photographs, ink and paper into the finished newspaper. The departments offer technical job opportunities in typesetting, photengraving, stereotyping and press operation. Although a high-school graduate can qualify for many trainee jobs, a technical education is very helpful. An increasing number of graduate engineers are being employed in the production department.

Work on high-school or college newspapers is especially valuable training for any of these newspaper fields.

The whole newspaper story can't be told here. To learn more about its exciting employment opportunities, mail the coupon on this page. You'll receive a 22-page illustrated brochure, "Career Opportunities in the Daily Newspaper Business," a list of accredited journalism schools and other guides. Why not mail it today?

AT DAHLONEGA RANGER CAMP

State Peaks Test The Toughest GIs

By FRANK WELLS
Constitution Staff Writer

DAHLONEGA — Uncle Sam's toughest soldiers are trained on the steep, rocky mountain faces of north Georgia — the tough men who bear the proud title of Rangers.

The Ranger training camp 11 miles from this old gold-mining town is just part of the intensive physical and mental conditioning the cream of the Army goes through to get the coveted Ranger tab.

SMALL CLASSES

The few soldiers who are selected — each class numbers only about 150-160 — first report to Ft. Benning at Columbus. There at the Infantry School the neophyte Rangers get the first part of their intensive physical and mental conditioning.

The ones who can pass this tough initiation then move down to Florida, where among rattlesnakes, alligators and an occasional panther, they take the "jungle" course in the wild backlands of Eglin Air Force Base reservation.

The Florida base also utilizes the Navy to train the future commanders in landing operations.

Then the class moves from the flat lands of Florida to the vertical landscape around Coopers Gap in north Georgia, 11 miles from Dahlonega.

The permanent cadre here is a tough one — full of combat veterans who know what skills young American men will need when the bullets are actually flying.

The camp is commanded by Lt. Col. William D. Brown, a sort of barrel-built fellow with iron grey, crew cut hair and an expressive manner of driving points home with a stabbing forefinger.

"The idea is to train enough Rangers so that each small infantry unit can have a man trained in this type of warfare. The way the world situation is now, you never know what the infantry unit will be called on to do," Col. Brown said.

He said that the goal of the Ranger mission was to train one qualified Ranger officer for each rifle company and one non-com for each rifle platoon. When needed, these men can teach their hard-earned Ranger knowledge to the others of their units.

NOBLE HISTORY

The Rangers have a noble history in every one of our wars. They date back to Maj. Robert Rogers, who organized a Ranger outfit in 1756 to fight with the British and Americans in the French and Indian War.

His standing orders are still taught to modern-day Rangers: The first standing order of Rogers was "Don't forget nothing." It's still a pretty good idea for any combat man.

Another of his orders:

"Tell the truth about what you see and what you do. There is an Army depending on us for correct information. You can lie all you please when you tell other folks about the Rangers, but don't never lie to a Ranger or officer."

Rogers' Rangers were the scouting force that kept in touch with the enemy and captured information-bearing prisoners.

The modern concept hasn't changed much. The basic training idea is how to operate behind enemy lines, with stealth substituting for force; trickery and tactics for firepower.

Can the American boy, with his basic, non-violent upbringing be taught to be as mean as necessary to make a good combat killer, as Ranger precepts require?

"Some can and some can't," was the quiet answer given by Sgt. Adolph Delso, veteran of 19½ years in the Army and going after 30.

"You never know until they are in combat whether the training really paid off. Half of this course is psychological, anyway, and we try to make it as realistic as possible."

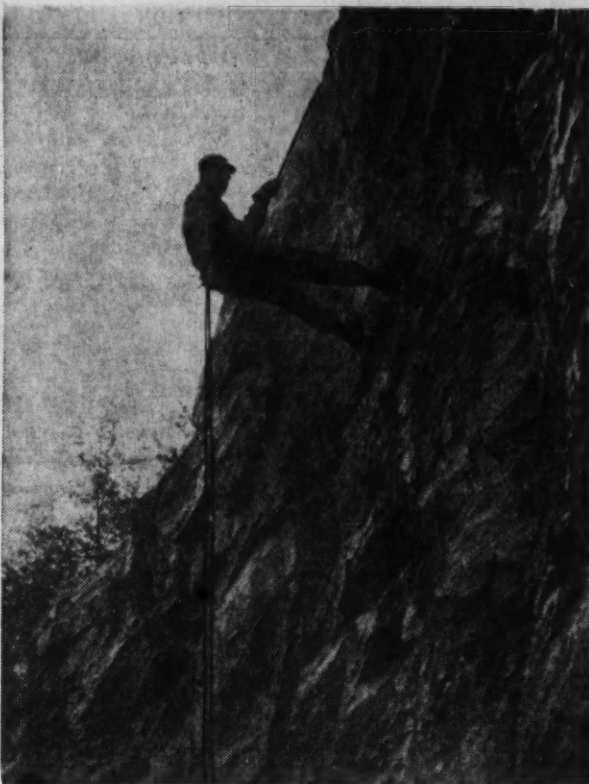

Moscow Starts Giant Hotel

LONDON (AP)—Work has begun on a 12-story Moscow hotel capable of accommodating 6,000 guests, Moscow radio said Sunday.

The building will incorporate a concert hall seating 3,000 and a 1,500-seat cinema, the broadcast added. Overlooking the Moskva River, the new hotel will include a basement garage for tourists and is expected to be completed in 1963.

RANGERS LEARN TO SLIDE FOR LIFE

M/Sgt. Adolph Delso Shows How to Come Down Cliff Face

"Well, guts and physical stamina go together," explained Sgt. George Wolcott, a Vermont Yankee with 17 years in uniform. "The boys we get now don't seem to have the physical stamina that you used to find when more of them came from the farm."

Kelso added, "Farm boys can walk. And the psychology of killing the enemy—secretly if necessary—comes easier to someone who has hunted a lot. It's just a bigger, more dangerous kind of quarry that the hunter is hunting."

About this time Sgt. Raymond S. Boggs of Haynes City, Fla., came in. Boggs has 14 years in the Army—years studded with five Bronze Stars, the Silver Star and the Purple Heart, all from action in Korea.

WHEN CHIPS FALL

"I figure about 80 per cent will make it as real Rangers when the chips are down," Boggs said. "If that figure seems high, remember these men are screened by the psychiatrists and the other head shrinkers so that they've got a pretty good idea of the type of man who will make it as a Ranger."

Sgt. Wolcott brought out the team idea: "We use the buddy system in training and it carries over. Each Ranger knows he's working as a member of a team. He won't want to let the others down and will do what is required."

The stripped-down Browning automatic rifles that are the Rangers' favorite weapons rattat-tat their messages of destruction and death in the north Georgia hills, shaking the blooms of dogwood and bush honeysuckle and later laurel and rhododendron down as the training of men who can be intent on death goes on.

Group Pledges New Drive for High-IQ School

The president of the Metropolitan Association for Gifted Children intends to continue her campaign for a school for "gifted" children.

Mrs. Glenn Bridges said her organization is going to continue working for a separate school for high-IQ children, despite a report last week from Atlanta School Superintendent John W. Letson in which he turned down, at least for the present, a proposal that Clark Howell School be converted for this use.

"We will have a school or suitable grouping of gifted children if the people of this city want it," Mrs. Bridges said.

SUPREME LEGACY

Closest Friends Will Pay Last Tribute to Cooper

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP). When Gary Cooper first heard that he was going to die of cancer, he took it silently and bravely and then consoled the young doctor who had to break the first such tragic disclosure of his own career.

"I have never seen such courage in a man," Dr. Rex Kennamer said today. "It was the first time I had to go through this myself and I guess Gary sensed it."

"He didn't say anything when I told him. He never even flinched. I left and later got a phone call from him:

"Young fellow, I know you were a little nervous about telling me the news. I just want you to know that I appreciate it. Thanks for telling me."

Cooper, Hollywood's most enduring star, died Saturday at his Holmby Hills home in West Los Angeles. He was just six days past his 60th birthday.

rites Tuesday

The funeral rites will be Tuesday morning at the Roman Catholic Church of the Good Shepherd in Beverly Hills. Solemn high Requiem Mass will be sung by the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Daniel Sullivan, the priest who attended Cooper in his fatal illness.

The Most Rev. Timothy Manning, auxiliary bishop of Los Angeles, is expected to give the eulogy. Pallbearers will be close friends Jimmy Stewart, Jack Benny, Director Henry Hathaway and Producers Jerry Wald, William Goetz and Charles Feldman.

The doctor said Mrs. Cooper knew her husband had terminal cancer last December. Cooper was told two months ago.

Asked if Cooper knew he had cancer the night the Friars tossed a testimonial for him on Jan. 8, the doctor said no.

By ironic coincidence, Cooper that night used the line that the late Lou Gehrig uttered at the 1941 Yankee Stadium tribute when the famed first baseman knew he was going to die.

"Am I the luckiest guy alive tonight? Yep."

Cooper, of course, played Gehrig in "The Pride of the Yankees," one of the most memorable of all his heroic screen portrayals.

But no movie script ever matched the courage that Cooper displayed during his fight with the onrush of death.

Cooper cheered his wife, Rocky, and their daughter, Maria, in the last days.

"It's God's will," he told them. Both, as a result, were able to take the final agony bravely.

One daily visitor to the home said:

"It was hard to believe that a man was dying in that house. It was filled with sunshine—and Coop himself spread most of it."

About a year after Cooper's conversion to Catholicism in 1959, I asked him how he was getting along with his new religion.

"Well," he drawled, "I

GARY COOPER

"I Know You, Cowboy"

wouldn't exactly say I was a pillar of the church."

But that was characteristic downrating of Cooper by Cooper.

Msgr. Sullivan commented:

"His faith can serve as a lesson to all of us. He had great faith and so do his wife and daughter. It is what sustained all of them during this sadness."

DAYS CHEERED

Cooper's final days were cheered by thousands upon thousands of letters and telegrams from all over the world.

"There were no crackpot letters among them. They were honest outpourings of the heart from people who loved this man although they had never seen him except on the screen. They were magnificent letters," said the cleric. Dr. Kennamer echoed Msgr. Sullivan's comment about the letters.

Among the letters was one from Queen Elizabeth of England. President Kennedy phoned the actor and talked to him for six or seven minutes.

Even Nikita Khrushchev recognized the greatness of Cooper. When the Soviet Premier visited Hollywood in 1959, he was greeted by practically every top name in the movie business. He recognized no one but Cooper.

"I know you, cowboy," Khrushchev said through his interpreter.

Honorary pallbearers at the private rites Tuesday will include old friend Ernest Hemingway, too ill himself to attend; John Wayne, Henry Ford II, Bing Crosby, who named his eldest son after Cooper; Burt Lancaster, Peter Lawford, Tony Curtis, Dick Powell, Walter Brennan, William Wyler, David O. Selznick, Billy Wilder, Kirk Douglas, Danny Kaye, Samuel Goldwyn and Fred Zinneman.

Cooper was not only Hollywood's most enduring star but also its most beloved.

In 35 years of stardom in Hollywood, Cooper never had an enemy. For any man, that is a supreme legacy. In this celluloid jungle, it's a miracle.

On The Cover

The stern-looking gentleman is Marlon Brando, who stars in "One-Eyed Jacks," a high-budget, low-key Western movie which is forthcoming at the Fox Theater soon.

Brando plays a cowboy who has only one thing (well, almost) on his mind—to kill the man who was responsible for the death of his own wife. Karl Malden plays this despicable villain. The movie will be reviewed in these pages at the appropriate time.

As I See It

Pity Winners-- Emmy Prize Is Kiss of Death

By PAUL JONES

The television industry Tuesday night honors its great, near-great and mediocre by awarding 25 Emmy Awards in 25 categories ranging from "Program of the Year" to "Best Engineering and Technical Achievement."

Jones

For some strange reason it will not be possible for the TV folks to recognize the Great Debates, which helped to mould public opinion in the recent Presidential election, as outstanding public service programming.

It was an oversight, I'm sure. But The Great Debates which attracted record-breaking audiences were not even mentioned among the 87 nominations in 24 categories.

Possibly it is just as well. For The Great Debates were not the brain child of broadcasting. Rather the idea for the debates originated in the fertile mind of a California newspaperman.

In some areas the broadcasters can look with pride upon achievement. In the field of "Outstanding Program Achievement in the Field of News," television can point to the exciting coverage of the conventions, or, perhaps to President Kennedy's news conferences.

IN THE FIELD of drama TV might take pride in the startling "Sacco-Vanzetti" drama which re-kindled an old controversy, or to the Hall of Fame's production of "Macbeth."

"The U-2 Affair," "CBS-Reports," "Project 20," and "Winston Churchill—The Valiant Years" are outstanding examples of television broadcasting. All four should be honored with Emmys.

The fun which Andy Griffith, The Flintstones, Candid Camera and Jack Benny have provoked in American homes merits some applause from the Emmy committee. Fred Astaire, Jack Paar, Shari Lewis and the artists who execute the refreshing Huckleberry Hound and Yogi Bear cartoon shows can take a bow. They're all superb.

BUT THEN THE TV industry should hang its head in shame when it considers what happened to some Emmy Award winners of days gone by.

Demon smoker Ed Murrow, who holds more public service and news Emmys than any other egghead in the nation, is temporarily, at least, leaving the "gloom and doom" school of commentary to head up the U.S. Information Agency.

Lucille Ball, a riot of fun when she starred in "I Love Lucy," has left the treadmill to oblivion for the Broadway theater, where an actor must be an old pro to win an award.

Rod Serling, collector of more Emmys than any other writer, says he thinks he has "had it" as far as TV is concerned. Serling's Twilight Zone might peter out after the 1961-62 season.

Remember "Requiem for a Heavyweight"?

Who Cares If They Can't Act?

By Jove, Hollywood is still the Mecca for the world's most beautiful girls as shown by this pair of photos. Above is Joyce Taylor, who plays the heroine of an MGM science fiction thriller, "Atlantis the Lost Continent." Below is Gina Lollobrigida. No more has to be said, except that this is a scene from "Go Naked in the World," in which, we assure you, Gina does no such a thing. Both movies are booked for Atlanta theaters in the near future.

RECORDS

Historic Space Trip Recorded

The Russians may have a thin lead in the contest to send men into space—but a 37-year-old Navy airman named Alan Shepard has proved that we aren't far behind. And the United States itself has shown that we haven't got a thing to hide about our space effort.

When Shepard made his historic blastoff at 9:34 on the morning of Friday, May 5, he was watched by TV and newspaper men from around the world. If his flight had flopped, the whole world would have known.

There are those who say that we would do better to hide our space failures and announce only our successes, the way the Russians do. But in a democracy that is easier said than done—and in a democracy, who wants to operate that way?

SHEPARD'S space ride was watched by record makers, too, and in the race to put his historic trip on records Columbia is an easy winner.

By last Tuesday, four days after the space trip itself, the records had been received by Columbia's Atlanta distributor. A day later they were in the hands of many retailers here.

Called "9:34 A.M., May 5, 1961," after the time of the flight, the recording does a fine job of capturing both the excitement and the significance of America's achievement.

Bob Trout narrates the story, compiled from broadcasts on CBS radio during the big day.

Werner von Braun Robert Trout

There is no musical background—and no musical background is needed.

Side 1 is the flight itself: the final 10-second countdown, the actual tapes of Shepard's conversation with ground control stations, his landing in the Atlantic and his triumphant arrival in the Bahamas, the doctor's jovial verdict that Shepard's physical condition was "superb." It's a thriller.

SIDE 2 puts the whole thing in perspective, and an excellent job it is, too. There are President Kennedy's congratulatory phone call to spaceman Shepard, scientist Werner von Braun's happy evaluation of the space trip, the joyful reaction in Washington.

There are reports taped from Europe's capitals, with our friends—particularly the British—cheering as enthusiastically as we did for Shepard's breakthrough and the Russians trying to pooh-pooh the whole thing.

And there is the sobering reminder that we are still behind the Russians, that we must still solve the problem of returning a man from orbit at a speed that will be three times Shepard's maximum speed.

But one fact is undeniable: in one glorious day America has wiped out most of the bitter memories of more than three years of bad news from space that began when Russia orbited its first Sputnik on Jan. 4, 1958.

The record ends with a goose-bump-raising performance of the Battle Hymn of the Republic by the Mormon Tabernacle Choir and any American will find it hard to keep from joining in the patriotic chorus. The words take on new meaning, too, words like:

We have loosed the fateful lightning of His terrible swift sword—

His truth keeps marching on.

Keeley, Louis Salute
"That Man Shepard"

Special to The Constitution
HOLLYWOOD—The expected deluge of 45-rpm records honoring U.S. spaceman Alan Shepard began last week with the release by Dot Records of "That Shepard Man," a new tune sung by Keeley Smith and her husband, Louis Prima.

The first two copies of the new single disc, printed last Tuesday, were sent to astronaut Shepard and President John F. Kennedy.

TOO MANY BIKINIS Movie Code Bars Film About Rape

(Copyright 1961 by the New York Times Co.)

HOLLYWOOD — A seal of approval has been withheld from "Town Without Pity" by the movie industry's self-censoring organization until changes are made in the film.

"Town Without Pity" is about four American soldiers stationed in a small German town who rape a German girl and the reaction within the town during the trial of the soldiers.

The movie is based on the novel, "The Verdict," by Manfred Gregor, who wrote "The Bridge," which was made into a movie that won critical acclaim recently when it opened in New York.

The picture is scheduled to be released by United Artists.

There are changes that can be made to meet the objections of the Motion Picture Production Code or an appeal can be taken from the ruling here.

UNUSUAL

It is unusual for the censors of the movie industry to withhold a seal of approval from a major film financed by an important American company, though the code has refused seals to a number of foreign films.

The last time a seal of approval was denied to an American film was "Private Property," which was made independently by Leslie Stevens.

"Town Without Pity" stars Kirk Douglas as the defense counsel for the soldiers, and

E. G. Marshall as the prosecutor. The movie was produced and directed by Gottfried Reinhardt. The film adaptation was done by his wife, Silvia, and by Georg Hurdalek.

According to Reinhardt, the Hollywood censors made a number of objections ranging from the use of bikini bathing suits to emphasis on lust and the delicate nature of the entire subject. Reinhardt said the rape itself is not shown.

"The points we made," said Reinhardt, "are germane to the story and quite legitimate. The book was based on a true occurrence. Actually, we toned down the book because you cannot show such a story on film in all its gruesomeness."

Reinhardt said he thought his picture was entitled to a seal of approval. He noted that the subject of rape itself has been in quite a few pictures that obtained seals of approval, including "Street Car Named Desire," "Anatomy of a Murder," and "Peyton Place." It was certainly no more salacious, he said, than "Butterfield 8," which received a seal of approval.

Sinatra Has a Heart of Gold?

By SHEILAH GRAHAM
North American Newspaper Alliance

HOLLYWOOD—Frank Sinatra, dining with his favorite doll, Juliet Prowse, bought up all the dolls at Trader Vic's Gift Shop and presented them to a blonde—this one was eight years old or thereabouts, at another table nearby.

When leaving the restaurant the little girl, with her father and the dolls, was on cloud nine. This is the same Sinatra who one day will do something like this, and the next day punch a reporter or a parking lot boy on the nose.

From Oscar-winner Peter Ustinov: "I keep an apartment in Switzerland, I still have a company in England, and I believe in paying taxes in the country where I earn the money. . . . Raymond Burr, who has been hospitalized several times because of "Perry Mason" pressure, is learning to stay at his beachside home and rest whenever he can.

The June Havoc-Bill Spiers Reconciliation is solid. Bill is back from rewooing June in Europe. . . . And Efrem Zimbalist Jr., happy with his reconciliation, is spending most of his TV vacation hiatus at home with his wife and children. Good! Most stars who work hard most of the year rush off to other towns and countries and come back more tired than when they started out.

Spotted blonde Nancy Valen-time lunching at Warners, a table away from the man who "discovered" her and put her under contract 10 years ago—Mervyn Le Roy. Nancy, with two marriages behind her, and the mother of a 4-year-old daughter, is reviving her career.

Stop the presses! Those love scenes with Brigitte Bardot—who else?—and her latest leading man, Alain Delon, in "Famous Loves," look so real that they have to be real. . . . Monique Van Vooren signed for the straw hat tour of "Destry" only after it was agreed that Gene Barry would not be repeating in the musical with her. Looks like TV singer Jimmy Dean will inherit Gene's role.

Otto Preminger saw Carroll Baker in "Something Wild" and immediately offered her the starring role in "Bunny Lake Is Missing."

Patti Page says the reason she ordered a wide, long skirt for her royal command performance in London is "so no one will see my knees knocking when I meet Her Majesty." Patti's nervousness cost her $5,000—the price of the dress whipped up for her by Joe Fretwell the Third of New York.

And, while we're in New York, George Gobel may have signed by now to star in the Broadway musical, "Let It Ride," the updated version of George Abbott's hit of the '30's—"Three Men on a Horse." The blonde they are going after to co-star with the not-so-lonesome George is that movie queen of the '40's, Betty Grable.

La Grable's gams alone are still worth the theater's price of admission.

It had to happen. A movie still of Paul Newman and Eva Marie Saint in "Exodus" was captioned, "Marlon Brando and Eva Marie Saint." When Paul started to get attention, he was called another Marlon Brando. He's hoping someone will approach Brando and ask, "May I have your autograph, Mr. Newman?"

There was a report that Field Marshal Lord Montgomery would act as technical adviser for Darryl Zanuck's big war epic, "The Longest Day." "Not so," snorted Lord Monty. But the idea isn't so farfetched, with former Minister of War Anthony Nutting serving as adviser for Sam Spiegel's "Lawrence of Arabia." And Sir Winston Churchill is not above giving advice to the producers of the screen biography of his early life.

Laurence Harvey has promised close friends that he will not marry Mrs. Joan Cohn, at least not before he finishes his role at Columbia in "A Walk on the Wild Side," early in June. But I wouldn't bet on a "no marriage" statement when Larry goes to England for a vacation following completion of the movie. Joan visited him in New Orleans during location work there. I'm sure she will also go to London.

'Closeup' Documentary Goes to Africa Again

"Land of the Black Ghost," second of two programs on reaction to Kenya's first common-role elections and the crisis which followed, will air on close-Up! Tuesday, Ch. 11, 8:30 p.m.

The title refers to Jomo Kenyatta, convicted as organizer of the Mau Mau terrorist movement and confined by the British. In his absence, Kenyatta casts a shadow over the campaign, the election and the nation. Part Two of this series will cover the political campaign, the February election, the opening of the Kenya legislative council and the refusal of the winning political party to form a government until Kenyatta is released—an action that caused a national deadlock not yet resolved. The passion for independence sweeping Kenya, the spirit and nationalism of the black Africans, and the fears of Kenya's white settlers will be reviewed, as viewers experience the sights and sounds of 1961 Kenya.

SCOUTING TV MONDAY

'Surfside 6' Episode Aimed Squarely at Your Funnybone

By THE TV SCOUT

BEST BET—For once, Surfside 6 injects humor into story. Monday's tale is built around hard-drinking, girl-chasing Irish novelist played by Sean McClory, old friend of hard-drinking Irish playwright Brendan Behan. McClory sees pretty girl and tries to pick her up. He's unaware that she's driving hold-up getaway car. Although incident is too coincidental, it lays groundwork for some funny stuff later — particularly gem of a scene in which gunman wants the novelist's autograph. 8:30-9:30 (Ch. 11).

9:30-10:30 (Ch. 5) — The Danny Thomas Show builds up to lecture on values of education, delivered feelingly by Thomas. Brenda Lee, teen-age singer, as cleaning woman's daughter with ambition, sets stage for moral. Her voice flips Danny, who is all set to launch her career. But Naomi Stevens, as girl's mother, tells him of her desire to see girl go to college. Miss Lee sings, too.

9:30-10:30 (Ch. 5)—As usual, it's Don Knotts who does most to make The Andy Griffith Show fun. Local boy makes good guitarist returns home and Don leads very short parade. But conquering hero turns out to be deadbeat. James Best, who played this same character earlier in the season, is back and does some good strumming as well as acting.

9:30-10:30 (Ch. 11) — Adventures in Parade spends time working up to one little surprise—but, when it comes, it's just what you've been expecting. James Barton is beachcomber with mysterious source of funds. Susan Oliver and some crooks wonder where his money tree grows. Some allegedly philosophical discussion is padding.

10:30-11 (Ch. 5)—June Allyson plays slick magazine heroine on The June Allyson Show repeat. She and her husband (Joe Maross), touring France, find orphanage which strangely fascinates her. You'll be able to figure out why early but story is moving, especially if tales of children affect you.

Pretty, But---

Felicia Farr guest stars as a woman whose lovely appearance hides a twisted mind in Wednesday's chapter of Wagon Train, Ch. 2, 7:30 p.m. During the course of the story, Flint McCullough (played by Robert Horton) falls in love with her, despite the warnings of wagonmaster Christopher Hale (John McIntire).

Worth Knowing

A friend told us the subject of the human brain is so fascinating that we ought to research it further to pass on to our readers additional interesting facts.

JOHN LANDER

It is an extensive subject which can get only the briefest comment in so short a column, few general interest items:

At time of birth, the human brain is the largest organ in the human body, weighing about 15% of the body's entire weight. As the body grows, the brain gradually represents a smaller percentage of the overall body's weight. By the time the child is six years old, the brain reaches its full size. Since the rest of the body normally continues to grow for another twelve to fifteen years, by the time one is an adult, the brain represents only 2% of the whole body weight, but controls everything done by the remaining 98%. At this full size, the average human brain weighs about three pounds.

Contrary to popular notion, science knows of no particular food that nourishes the brain best; it needs all of the same foods that keep the whole body fit, plus its own peculiar "food" of study, more study, experience, and more experience, all of which gives you your specialty in life.

We are dedicated to making our specialty mean the greatest automobile value to you, in the purchase, and AFTER the purchase.

MOW WITH A MANOR by Jacobsen

The 1961 Manor is Jacobsen's finest trimmer type reel mower. Remarkably easy to handle, the Manor features an "out front" cutting unit that cuts the grass before the drive wheels can lay it down—producing a carpet-smooth even lawn.

Front caster wheels permit easy turns for trimming around trees, along flower beds.

Powered by the famous Jacobsen Hi-Torque engine, the Manor is built for years of efficient service.

"LIKE CANCER" Fight Pay TV to the Finish, Pickus Tells Theater Group

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Pay television "is a cancer which must be fought wherever it appears," the president of the Theater Owners of America, Albert Pickus of Stratford, Conn., told Arkansas theater men last week.

Pickus urged the Independent Theater Owners of Arkansas to beat down an effort to establish pay TV in the Little Rock area. He pledged the support of the national organization in the fight.

International Telemeter Co., a division of Paramount Pictures Corp., and Midwest Video Corp. of Little Rock are seeking to establish a wired system of pay television here.

A public service commission hearing is scheduled Monday on Midwest's petition to force Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. to provide lines for the system.

Theater owners have intervened in the case, asking dismissal of Midwest's petition.

Pickus charged that pay TV backers "cannot deliver the grandiose programming they are promising." He contended the system would cost $250 to $300 a year for minimum viewing and $800 to $1,000 a year "to see all pay TV has to offer."

He forecast slightly larger production by major film studios this year.

Pickus called defeat of pay TV, the threat of censorship and the need for increased motion picture production, the three major problems confronting theater men.

Sunny Song

Arthur Godfrey sings with the McGuire Sisters during a taping session at Vizcaya, an Italian-style palazzo in Miami, for the hedhead's hour-long special Friday, Ch. 5, 9:30 p.m. The program, which also features Buddy Hackett, Johnny Nash, Erroll Garner and Kong Ling, was taped in Florida, India and New York.

Broadway star Shirley Booth will undertake her first TV series next season. She will appear in the title role of "Hazel," a weekly comedy half-hour based on the forthright housemaid character in Ted Key's popular cartoon panel.

Puppet Queen Lewis Wants No Part of Hollywood Life

North American Newspaper Alliance

for children of all ages, refuses to make feature-length movies in Hollywood, or to star in a TV series in Hollywood.

"There's too much politics," she says. "Hollywood is a whole milieu that's like one of those girls' schools with everyone knowing too much about everyone else. In New York there is healthy competition, but not in Hollywood which has a peculiar attitude toward new people. On TV, young players get constant breaks to develop ability. Hollywood's attitude is completely different."

According to Shari's husband, Jeremy Tarcher, she is the best ventriloquist in the world. How did it start?

GREW WITH HER

"It was one of the things that grew with me," Shari replied. "At parties, I was always asked to do something. But it's funny, with all the books I've written, I've never written one on how to be a ventriloquist.

"You could say," she continued, "that I was born and bred in commercial TV." Her present show, which replaced Howdy Doody a few years ago, has sponsors until January 1962.

"Where most children's shows are for one age group," said the star, "ours has widened the age-group range to the parents and the grandparents. I have been in show business since I was three years old."

"My punishment when I was a child and did something wrong was that my mother wouldn't let me go to dancing school that week. There was no greater punishment than that!"

Shari was born into the show world. Her mother is a music teacher with the New York Board of Education. Her father, Dr. Abraham B. Hurwitz, now a director of student activities at Yeshiva University, was for many years the official magician for the New York City Department of Recreation.

Shari keeps to a very strict work regime. "I get up at 7:45 every morning and go to work (in a rehearsal studio). Then I have breakfast. I eat lunch while I'm working, and usually cook dinner at home." Home is a huge apartment on Riverside Drive overlooking the Hudson River.

"We don't work at all on Sunday, we regard that as a sacred day in which to do nothing. We have a boat, moored one block from our apartment. We can't have a dog, although I have always longed for a pet dog. It wouldn't be fair to have one because we are away from home so much. So, my puppets are my pets; I have more than a thousand puppets."

The Tarchers plan to have three children. But Shari's career will go on. And the career right now includes television in England, a tour of Australia, "The Voice Of The Turtle" in summer stock, and a movie—"but only if it can be made in New York."

Only a Few Shows Survive After Emmys Are Passed Out

THE TV INDUSTRY can find little comfort in the fact that the first Emmy award for the most popular television program went to Mike Stokey's Pantomime Quiz, a revolting spectacle which used to return to The Tube as a summer replacement as regularly as crab grass pops up on my lawn.

Milton Berle, who emceed a series of bowling exhibitions, is obviously not happy that his title "Mr. Television" does not entitle him to a regular job. The bowling series didn't finish out the season.

Dinah Shore will now have time to fondle her seven Emmys. She's finished, informed sources say, at the end of the spring.

Should American Heritage win an Emmy Tuesday night it might find, too, that the gold-plated accolades aren't worth a pawn-ticket when it comes to prestige. Heritage is on the chopping block, too.

THE EMMY AWARDS party, like the motion picture counterpart, the Oscar brawl, is a farce.

The industry merely pats itself on the back for what it considers a job well done. The selections are made by people within or associated with the field of broadcasting.

Having pulled the rug out from under the Peabody Awards, presented each year under the auspices of the University of Georgia School of Journalism, The Tube might also look about for a more fitting way for some disinterested group to recognize excellence in television.

Lassie, who continues to bound over fences with the aplomb of a ballet dancer, is practically the only "star" to find Emmy's kiss of affection was not the kiss of death.

EMMY STATUETTE, TV'S SOUGHT-AFTER PRIZE

'NATION'S FUTURE' Is Peace Possible? Cousins Thinks So

Norman Cousins, editor of The Saturday Review, and Leo Cherne, executive director of the Research Institute of America, will debate the question, "Is a Durable Peace with the Soviets Possible?" Saturday on The Nation's Future, NBC-TV's award-winning debate series, Ch. 2, Saturday, 9:30 p.m.

John K. M. McCaffery will be moderator.

It will be the second meeting for Cousins and Cherne on The Nation's Future, although viewers of this news-making program will see them for the first time. They debated a similar question—"Is a Workable Peace With the Soviets Possible Now?"—before a studio audience last March 25.

That debate, recorded on tape, was scheduled for broadcast April 15, but developments in Cuba and Laos outdated several of their remarks, and a debate on a different topic, with other speakers, was substituted April 15.

In the May 20 debate, Cousins will take the affirmative position and Cherne will present the negative case.

Cousins visited and lectured in the Soviet Union under the change program in 1959. He was the first American to speak on questions of foreign policy before the Praesidium of the Soviet Peace Committee.

He also lectured before the Soviet Writers' Union and the Academy of Social Science. In 1960 he organized and was co-chairman of a conference at Dartmouth College between Soviet and American scientists, economists and other leaders from the two countries.

Cousins is the author of many books, including "In Place of Folly," which outlines the essential facts of the nuclear arms race and presents alternatives, and "Modern Man Is Obsolete," which grew out of his widely-circulated editorial.

He is honorary president of United World Federalists Inc., a national organization working for world peace through a strengthened United Nations, and co-chairman of the National Committee for a Sane Nuclear Policy.

Cherne is chairman of the board of the International Rescue Committee.

More Faces

To judge from these shots, you'd think movie stars were out to look as foolish as possible. No wonder Shirley MacLaine (top right) hides her cute face in a scene from the film "Two Loves," opening Wednesday at Fine Art Cinema, in which she plays a school-teacher in New Zealand. Kenneth More, top left, is costarred in the same movie as a school inspector. Apparently he does not take his responsibilities too, too seriously. At bottom right we have Richard Widmark's facial contortions as he socks an adversary into the middle of next week in "The Secret Way," now at the Rhodes.

NIGHT SPOTS

Two New Openers Promised Here For Club Goers

By ROSCOE DUDLEY

Paul Gilbert, opening Monday at the Peachtree Club, is all sorts of things.

I assume he will be called on mostly to utilize his talents as a comedian during his Peachtree stay, but he is also something of a musical virtuoso, being adept on the drums, piano, trumpet, tenor sax, bass, French horn and vibra-harp, not to mention the bongos.

His first visit to New Orleans to play in a top supper club there gave him a solid introduction to the origins of jazz, and an acquaintance with some of the great musicians who began their careers there. Small wonder that one of the most popular numbers in his night club performance should be his take-off on a one-man jazz band.

Also on the Club Peachtree bill is Princess Nyeela, "the world's most fabulous provocative Oriental dancer." Shades of Fu Manchu.

ANOTHER OPENER MONDAY is Danny Marshall, young pianist-singer-comedian at the quiet — blessedly quiet after some of the roaring and stomping that passes for music in some spots — Zebra Lounge.

Marshall's career has been remarkable in some ways. In 1939, when about 10 years of age, his family was fleeing from Germany, via Prague. He came here as a sub-teener, and in his early 30s was with a two-act, the Marshall Bros., playing vaude and presentation houses. He latched on to the piano less than five years ago.

A PRETTY GAL billed as Suzanne plinks on the cocktail piano at Monte Carlo Lounge. I don't know her last name, but she must have one.

THAT DIXIELAND jazz band, still playing loud enough to make Stone Mountain shriek, is minus Peanuts Fitch, who's moved himself and his git-tar over to the House of Eng.

DICK MILLER and his group staying at the Sans Souci Lounge. Miller's sidemen are Don Bartell, Bob Connelly and Larry Ragland, Irma Franklin, singing pianist, presides at the piano-bar. Jazz sessions on Saturday afternoons, too.

BAYOU LOUNGE is holding over Joe Stanwood, who shares billing with Ralph Mayes and his Peachtree Strutters.

GREAT JUMPING ZEUS from Kokomo!!! There's no Freddie Martell and no ice show at the Biltmore. I hear, however, that he'll be back in July, so you'll just have to be patient. He's an MGM recording star, you know.

Italians Lead Way

OTTAWA (AP) — Italians headed the list of Canadian immigrants for the first three months of 1961 with 2,892 arrivals. U.S. arrivals were second, totaling 2,023.

Aloha

Veteran showman James Barton is guest star in "Hill of Ghosts" on Adventures in Paradise, Monday on Ch. 11 at 9:30 p.m. He plays a rollicking beachcomber with a mysterious source of wealth which arouses the interest of such island beauties as those pictured above, as well as the greed of some far less savory characters.

Roulette Jockeys Are Out of Luck

"There IS no gambling system," says Dr. Frederick Mosteller flatly. "We might say that a good gambling system is to have your own casino. If you can't, then there isn't any gambling system for you. Las Vegas and Monte Carlo are living memorials to your kind."

As teacher of NBC-TV's Continental Classroom color course in probability and statistics, he has learned that many of his TV students have a gambling system of their own in their pocket. Some have been writing to tell him how it works—and ask him how to improve it.

Dr. Mosteller—chairman of Harvard University's department of statistics—isn't surprised. Statisticians, it seems, are asked about gambling systems more than about any other subject.

"I wish they wouldn't send their so-called systems to me," he pleads. "I don't want to hear them." He's not being ungracious. It's simply that the systems won't work. "My advice is—don't try them," he counsels.

But there is something he will ask his TV students to try. He had a Latin teacher once who had a motto he still remembers: "Disce ut semper victurus, Vive ut cras moriturus." Dr. Mosteller will use this as a note of farewell in his last TV lecture May 26. A rough translation—his own—is: "Learn as if you would live forever; live as if you would die tomorrow."

WGTV CHANNEL 8

6:30—Streamlined Reading (LIB). WGTV and the Georgia State Dept. of Education join forces to help Georgia's "functional illiterates" learn to read.

7:00—Growing South (LIVE).

7:30—Of Science and Scientists (NET). The ideas which guide scientific research and the truth that research uncovers is revealed through analogy and demonstration.

8:00—Four Families (NET). A study of four rural families in India, France, Japan, and Canada; featuring Dr. Margaret Mead.

9:00—Picture Window—Home-builders (LIVE). How is the lighting layout planned

9:30—Layman's Guide to Modern Art (NET). A summary of the previous programs and an analysis of modern painting illustrating how to read the language of modern art.

10:00—Fine Art's Quartet (NET). The Fine Arts Quartet in a rehearsal performance of Beethoven's Opus 18, No. 3.

Nosey

This delightfully intimate scene between Michael Craig and Anne Heywood occurs somewhere during the course of "Upstairs and Downstairs," a lively little British imported comedy film currently playing at Peachtree Art. Craig and Heywood play a young married couple who encounter all sorts of trouble when they decide to hire a battery of domestic help. Mylene Demongeot is costarred, and the picture's in color.
